Christmas Trees Through The Ages

The National Christmas Tree Association has compiled the following facts about Christmas trees through the ages:

•In 1510, the first Christmas tree is decorated with paper, fruits, and sweets.

•In 1531, the first retail Christmas tree lots appear in German cities.

•By 1600s, Christmas trees are decorated with ribbon, tin shapes, small books, and lace, as well as food.

•In the 18th century, Christmas trees are decorated with lighted candles.

•In 1777, the tradition of the Christmas tree is brought to Colonial America by Hessian troops fighting for Britain in the Revolutionary War.

•In 1804, U.S. soldiers stationed at Fort Dearborn

(now Chicago) bring evergreen trees into their barracks at Christmas. In 1882, Charles Minnegrode introduces the custom of a decorated Christmas tree in Williamsburg, Va.

•In 1851, Mark Carr opens a retail Christmas tree lot in New York City, the first in the United States.

•In 1856, Franklin Pierce, the 14th U.S. president, brings the first Christmas tree into the White House.

•In 1923, President Calvin Coolidge starts the National Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony now held every year on the White House lawn.

Gift Ideas

Continued from Page 30 a local farm delivers a set amount of seasonal produce to a household for a specific number of weeks. It's a great way to source foods locally, and the recipient will get to try a variety of fresh fruits and vegetables throughout the season.

From an ornament that helps sick children get better to planting a tree that grows bigger each year, gifts with meaning will be remembered well beyond the end of December and are a win-win – your recipient feels great about receiving a meaningful present and you feel good about putting your shopping dollars toward something with positive influence.

Whether you're shopping for someone and it seems impossible to find the right gift, or the person seems to have it all, a charitable donation made in the recipient's name is sure to bring a smile during the holidays.

If you know the person's favorite charity, visit its web site and decide on the amount you want to donate. Most charities allow you to print a certificate or card with the person's name and a personal message about the donation, so you can put a gift under the tree. Oakland. Market activities include shopping for unique, handmade gifts, tasting chili and Fair Trade coffee and tea at the Christmas Café, finding Christmas goodies at the bake sale, and enjoying live music with friends.

Lynn Grimm, on hammered dulcimer, will open the Christmas Market at 10 a.m. Aurora Celtic will fill the hall with holiday spirit as they play their acoustic original and traditional tunes and sell their acclaimed CDs from noon to 2 p.m. Ron Rogers will follow with his faith folk-rock from 2 to 4 p.m.

New to the market this year are local artist Jill Mazur, Appalachian Milk Soaps, Barbara Englander's Seeds for Dreams, and Mountain Heart Farm Soy Candles. Shoppers will find Sunnyside Wools with its new vintage-style women's hats, jeweler Connie Quarrick-Hall's Wirestorm Creations, Karen Yoder's handsewn purses and aprons, and Robert Yonke's award-winning watercolor paintings and cards.

The directors of Our Town Theatre are grateful to announce that several artists whose work has grown in demand since their first year at the market will participate for their sixth year. Pamela Snyder will be selling her handmade fine stoneware, Caroline Blizzard will sell her unique photographs and cards of the natural world, and Julie Turrentine

AN OPEN HOUSE at the Oakland B&O Railroad Station will be held Friday and Saturday, Nov. 23 and 24, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. both days. An extensive exterior and interior restoration was recently completed at the station, including the installation of air conditioning, humidity control, UV protection on windows, and surveillance cameras, in preparation for the station to become a B&O Railroad museum. The next phase of work will be installation of the gift shops and display cases for artifacts from the B&O Railroad Museum in Baltimore. Available for purchase at the gift store will be local works of art, historic DVDs, Christmas ornaments, note cards, and postcards. Eventually gift items from the B&O Museum in Baltimore will also be brought to Oakland and sold on consignment. Cumberland and Deep Creek Lake resident Kim Leonard has donated his Charles Amos painting of the station, which will also be on display. Additional renovation will begin soon on the baggage room, which will be transformed into a classroom and theater for programs on B&O Railroad and local history. The museum committee is starting to recruit volunteers to staff the station/museum when it opens on a full-time basis. Persons who enjoy local history and/or railroads and who are looking for an interesting activity are asked to contact Asa McCain at 301-334-2569 or Terry Helbig at 301-533-1050. The committee also hopes to hear from past and current employees of the B&O and CSX who may also find volunteering at the station a rewarding experience and could share their own personal railroading stories. There will additional open houses at the station during Oakland's downtown Christmas celebration, Winter Fest, and next April during the commemoration of the sesquicentennial of Jones Raid during the Civil War. The committee is expecting the remaining restoration work at the station to be completed this winter, after which artifacts will arrive and be placed into the display cases.

NEIGHBORS HELPING NEIGHBORS - There have been numerous examples of such activity since the big nor'easter that dumped nearly three feet of snow on the Mountaintop a few weeks ago, causing massive damage to trees, power lines, and structures. The above shot was taken at the home of Robert Hodges along Paul Friend Road in Pleasant Valley soon after his Amish neighbors descended on his property and took it upon themselves to clean up the many trees and limbs that had fallen. Hodges, who is physically disabled, brought the photo into the newsroom of The Republican and asked if it could be published, along with an expression of his appreciation for their unselfish act of kindness. "This was such a kind and wonderful gesture on their part," he said. "It is a blessing to have such great neighbors." Many other local residents enjoyed similar experiences thanks to the kindness of their neighbors. While cleanup work continues throughout the county, all power has been restored to county residents, over half of whom were without it during and following the storm.

the landfill's Cell 4 has been completed, Garrett County Department of Solid Waste and Recycling manager Dave Baker announced yesterday. Following inspection by Geosyntec and approval from the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE), county staff began placing the fluff layer (the first soft refuse) on top of the five acres of the newly lined cell in late October. Development of Cell 4 was called for in the county's 10-Year Solid Waste Plan, adopted in 2004. Permit work and approvals are pending for Cell 5, with plans to resume construction next spring. "Once completed the two cells combined should provide Garrett County with 15 to 20 years of refuse capacity based on current trends," Baker said. "The county was able to continue its 'lean' approach to governing in the completion of this project." Geosyntec consultants designed Cell 4, and the construction firm Charles J. Merlo was able to use clay located on-site to meet MDE requirements for sub-grade permeability. "This resulted in nearly a $300,000 savings over the use of a special membrane containing bentonite clay," Baker noted. The county also benefited from the crushing of on-site piles of large rocks for use in the drainage layer. Spoils from the crushing operations will be used on roads and as cover within the landfill. "County officials recognized that by amending the 10-year plan to include Cell 5, additional savings would be realized," Baker added. "They had already moved to enhance the staff at the landfill with nmate labor provided by the county sheriff's office. This inmate labor helps to keep litter under control at the cell and speeds service to the users at a very minimal cost." Wouldn't It Be Nice?...

While almost everyone complains about the retailer-instigated effort to get people into the Christmasbuying "spirit" earlier and earlier every year, and that the Thanksgiving holiday gets swallowed up in that process, that complaint seems to have almost no negative impact on the numbers of shoppers on what has become known as Black Friday. Tens of millions of Americans are expected to hit the big-box stores this Friday, with some of them already camping there just so they can be the first in line.

While the BF frenzy in the past few years has commenced at midnight Thanksgiving Thursday night, a few of the big retailers, including Wal-Mart, have decided to move things up by four hours this year, meaning they will open for Black Friday shopping at 8 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day. This decision is now drawing criticism from several camps, including some employees of these establishments, others who simply do not like the idea of people having to work on a national holiday, and particularly the United Food and Commercial Workers International Union, which would just love to secure a foothold in businesses such as Wal-Mart, a company that has to date successfully repelled such attempts by the union.

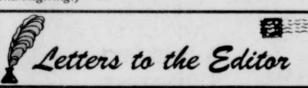

Some employees have threatened a walkout, and a the challenge by utilizing pointments. In trying to look at both sides of the issue, yes, wouldn't it be nice if retail establishments would back off a little and let us all have Thanksgiving back as a day of observance and family togetherness? With competition among retailers so intense, one would expect the BF hours to keep being pushed up, coin- streams converging to form mencing, say, at 6 p.m. on Thanksgiving next year; then maybe even at noon the following year, etc. And wouldn't it be nice if the employees of these establishments could have a whole day off to enjoy with their second problem of funding. families?

There will also be many other people who will have to work on Thanksgiving, and some of them all day long, such as hospital and emergency service personnel. Many other retail businesses will also be open on Dear Mr. Gregory: Thanksgiving, such as gas stations, convenience stores, and fast-food restaurants. So it seems that walking out by an employee of Wal-Mart Thursday evening would be a rather foolish act, as there are undoubtedly many people who would quickly and gladly take that job. Merry Christmas, everyone! (Oh... yeah... Happy end, the Friends arranged for an audio recording of both last Wednesday's meeting as well as the water quality group meeting. Beelar restated the request made by Brian Greenberg, urging Secretary Griffin to develop channels of communications beyond the narrow research reporting.

DNR Resource Assessment Services head Bruce Michael volunteered his view that he could appreciate the community frustration and wishes for progress on a quicker time frame.

The Water Quality Working Group consists of various state and local agency staff involved in research and water monitoring, and meets semi-annually - in the spring to review upcoming research, and in the fall to present study findings. Meeting attendance is voluntary.

Attending last Thursday's meeting were four representatives from the DNR, Annapolis, three county staff persons, two local DNR staff persons, and a couple of participants from community groups.

Eric Null of Deep Creek Lake management presented a report on the first year of the benthic mats pilot. These mats are used to prevent growth of intrusive aquatic grasses around docks. Six mats were installed in 2012, but several had problems. People have been calling the lake management office for information about installation for 2013. Null said that the office is also working on a stormwater problem with a local homeowners association. He announced the removal of the stationary water monitoring station at Poland Run, meaning that only one tributary work. - Cherry Creek - is currently being monitored. Bruce Ortt of DNR Maryland Geological Survey gave an in-depth progress report on the work on Phase II of the Deep Creek Lake sediment study. The lab is currently studying the 42 cores of sediment which were taken from around the lake. Ortt said that these cores will provide MGS with information on when sediment was deposited, which will be critically important data for developing plans for sediment retention proposals for tributaries and shorelines. Ortt said that sampling analysis indicates that lake sediments are currently pollutant-free. Of particular concern was mercury, since Deep Creek Lake is listed as impaired by mercury contamination, and fish consumption advisories exist. But the mercury that appears in fish flesh is not present in sediments, which Ortt said is good news because the sediment which eventually will be removed will not require special handling, substantially reducing removal storm-water runoff. Ortt said that, at this point, in 2013. he and other technical people cannot say whether how 5-6% of the section of the from the tributaries and how much from shoreline erosion, nor do they know the rate and depth of accumulation. Ortt did make a request to the general public.

'We are very interested in finding any historical maps which show the depths at Deep Creek Lake, such as old fishing maps, he said, inviting anyone having such a map to contact him at rortt@dnr. state.md.us.

The fourth annual water monitoring report was presented by DNR's Sherm Garrison, who acknowledged that there has been no change in the sampling sites and protocol during 2012.

"What we are seeing is that 98% of the lake is good," he said. "The other is experiencing some submerged aquatic vegetation and algal blooms. Since the lake is a natural system, you will see algal blooms.

DNR scientists report that they need as much data as can be collected, so it is unclear how many more years DNR plans to continue sampling in the same sites around the lake and whether sampling locations will be changed.

Ellen Williams volunteered there is a problem of communications about this

"What DNR labels as a cove is not what we at the lake refer to as a cove," she said, adding that an example of this disparity is the cove designation for Deep Creek Cove, which is in the channel between Pergin Farms and Crescent Shore, and not up the actual Deep Creek Cove. The 2010 study conducted by UMD/Center for Environmental Sciences EcoCheck concluded there was insufficient water quality data being collected to make an overall assessment of the lake or watershed. These independent scientists urged diversification of collection points in the lake to collect data on the "near shore" zone - the shoreline out 100 feet - the coves, and the headwater areas of the coves, which are transition areas between the tributaries and the lake. According to Beelar, data currently collected by DNR reflects only water-quality conditions in the middle of the lake. She said a summary of the study can be found on the Friends'

During the last few weeks they have been decorating a tree that will be donated to the Festival of Trees fundraiser, scheduled for this weekend at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Dove Center. The theme of the SMS tree is "Tools for School." The decorations and ornaments are items the students feel are necessary for a middle school student. Examples include paper, pencils, erasers, folders, and paper clips. Also attached to the tree is advice for incoming sixth graders. Students addressed such issues as meeting new people, how to open a locker, and how to read a schedule. A tree skirt was also created, in which each student helped make by tracing his/her hand onto the fabric. "We have all enjoyed participating in this project and want to thank all of those at the Dove Center, Naylor's Hardware for help with purchasing our tree, parent volunteers, and students and staff at Southern Middle School for their support," said an SMS spokesperson. JamZone Kids To Present Secret Of Snowflake County

The JamZone children of Loch Lynn Church of God's Kidz Factory will present a children's musical titled The Secret of Snowflake County on Friday, Nov. 30, at 7 p.m. and again on Sunday, Dec. 2, at 6 p.m. The Cherub Choir, which is composed of children up to 5 years of age, will also perform.

The children would like to extend a special invitation to come and join them in celebrating the true meaning of Christmas," said a church spokesperson.

Snowflake County is described as a place where Christmas celebrations have become so extravagant they threaten to overshadow the simplicity of Christmas' true meaning.

"It seems the only one of Jesus' simple birth is little Suzy Hallmark - but no one is listening," said the spokesperson about the play. "It will take a series of crazy mishaps during the community's annual seasonal program before the noise stops and everyone realizes that Christmas isn't about how brightly lights and decorations shine it's about Jesus, the light of the world.

The local chapter of the American Red Cross will host its "Home for the Holidays" house tours again this year, with the event taking place on Dec. 7 and 8 and including a church, a mansion, and three private homes.

The Maxwell Cottage in historic Mountain Lake Park will be among the stops at this year's event. The home was built in 1886 by a successful banker from Clarksburg, W.Va. Situated by the once wooden walkway close to the train station for convenience, the cottage was built for the Maxwell family to spend the summer months. The 3,500-square-foot home had plenty of space for the Maxwells and any guests that would come to partake of the cooler summer weather of Mountain Lake Park. The home stayed in the Maxwell and related family until the 1970s when the home was purchased by a local attorney. The attorney and his family remained in the house until it was purchased by Jim Tong and Michael Horton in 1999. The two Major renovations were made to the house in 1999, the results of which are the same today. The 16-room "cottage" is in the Queen Anne style of architecture. The original wraparound porch makes a stately appearance for a formal entrance. Another feature of note is the three-story-high turret.

Guests to the house during the tour will find a home that has been painstakingly preserved, yet has all the conveniences of the modern world, Tong said. There are three floors, and all three will be featured on the tour. The house is decorated with a large collection of antiques,

ROTARY PRESENTS CHECK TO RONALD MCDONALD HOUSE - The Oakland Rotary Club presented a $1,000 donation to the Ronald McDonald House (RMH), Morgantown, W.Va., last Thursday during the club's regular meeting in the Garrett County Memorial Hospital conference room. A large part of Garrett County is outside the 50-mile RMH requirement, and many residents are able to stay overnight there while their children are in West Virginia University's Children's Hospital. For those who live closer than 50 miles, RMH facilities are available for day use, a club spokesperson noted. Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the 15th year, The Republican newspaper and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is the WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

Republican

and the

GFWC Civic Club of Oakland

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland and The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $125 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination. Many volunteers are working together to make sure the children of Garrett County stay warm this winter.

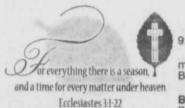

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

First Christian Church,

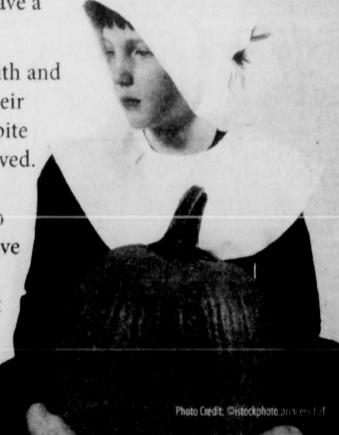

A Faithful Thanksgiving

Hardships prevailed that first Thanksgiving. Death was the Pilgrim's companion and creature comforts were few. Yes, some had survived that tortuous first year, but who knew what tribulations lay ahead? Many of us might wonder what inspired those struggling Pilgrims to have a celebration at all. They did have the power of faith and prayer. Through calamities, their spirits were made strong. Despite the difficulties, they had survived.

Certainly then, whatever our situation, we all have reason to celebrate the strength we receive from our Heavenly Father. We can enter His house with great thanksgiving this week.

In the Acts of the Apostles, we see that the early Christian message spread quickly, even if there were disputes among the founders about the details of living a Christian life. Even earlier than the Christian era, it appears that there were pivotal figures whose ideas caught on and spread virally. In the period from roughly 800-200 BC, diverse figures such as Confucius, Buddha, Socrates, and the prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah were spreading very similar messages about what it was to live a good life. Which invariably involved some version of the golden rule, i.e., that we

A holiday 'Makeover': Hit reality show back with four seasonal specials

By Andrew Warren

The holiday season is finally upon us -- that time of joyous giving and heartwarming acts of year when holiday specials begin filling TV screens, and ABC has a treat all wrapped up for both four lucky families and millions of fans of its best known feel-good show. Although it wrapped up its ninth and final season back in January of this year, ABC is bringing back its hit "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition" for four inspirational holiday themed episodes. The spirit of giving begins on Monday, Nov. 26, with the remaining episodes making their way to the airwaves on the following three Mondays.

If ever there was a reality show that seemed to be custom made for this time of vear, "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition" is it. Each of the four holidaythemed episodes will follow the same format that made the original show must-watch TV. Each week, the

"Extreme Makeover team will visit a family deserving of a top-notch home renovation, bring ing along with it a veritable army of local volunteers and tradespeople who, in only one week, will gut their house and rebuild it into a dream home.

It's a family that's given a lot of people something to be thankful for: a safe, welcoming home. The family runs "The Restoration House," a home for single mothers in need.

way the following Monday, Dec. 3. when host Ty Pennington leads the cameras to Smithville, Texas. There he meets volunteer firefighter Mizzy Zdroj and her family who, in a tragic twist of fate, lost their home in Texas' biggest wildfire in its history. Luckily for them, Christmas will be coming early with a magnificent new home to call their own. Not only that, but they'll also get to meet famous chef Art Smith, BMX biker Matt Hoffman and even some special isn't lacking, it's the warmth and

cheer of the season. More than 30 children have found a loving family as they've been fostered through the years by the Fridays, and a full family of five siblings has found a permanent home with them through adoption. A furry green helper will be showing up to help out with the holiday spirit, too. Reformed enemy of Christmas, the Grinch, will be making the long trip from Whoville so that he can help out with the build in Lincolnton.

The last stop for the "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition" crew on this journey of generosity is at the home of the Harris family in Smithville, Texas. Shilo Harris, a veteran, was wounded while on patrol in Iraq, and ever since has been fighting for other wounded veterans, helping to provide them with emotional support and working to help find them civilian "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition" began back in 2003 as a 13 episode spinoff of "Extreme Makeover." It soon eclipsed its mother show's popularity, and over its nine-season run amassed a loyal viewership, armfuls of award nominations and two Primetime Emmy Awards (both for Outstanding Reality Program, in 2005 and 2006).

Throughout the show's lengthy run, in which its team ebbed and flowed as designers, landscapers and other good-hearted souls came and went, two things remained constant: host Ty Pennington's constant smile and the inspiring stories behind every

Although "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition" aired its last regular episode in January, ABC promised that it wasn't dead but would return with frequent specials. True to its word, it has brought fans of this feel-good show an early Christmas present.

Mantegna leads this year's Hollywood Christmas Parade

By Sheila Busteed

HOLIDAY MARCH: When more than 100 celebrities take to the streets of Hollywood this week, Joe Mantegna will lead the pack. The actor will serve as grand marshal of the Hollywood Christmas Parade this Sunday, Nov. 25, as it travels the 3.2-mile parade route from Hollywood Boulevard around to Sunset Boulevard.

The Hallmark Channel will air the event later, on Monday, Dec. 10. Erik Estrada ("CHiPS") and Laura McKenzie ("The World's Funniest Moments") will host the broadcast, with Dean Cain ("Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman") serving as host of the musical portion.

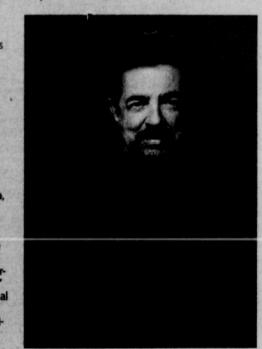

Mantegna joins a long and distinguished list of grand marshals for this parade, which dates back to 1928. Among them are Marie Osmond, Larry King, Susan Lucci, Bob Barker, Magic Johnson, Peter Fonda, David Hasselhoff, Tony Danza, Arnold Schwarzenegger, William Shatner, Michael Landon, Ron Howard and Bob Hope.

Mantegna stated that the opportunity to lead the parade "means a great deal to me, to [be a] part of this fine American tradition that has brought wonde ful holiday cheer to millions over its 80-year history."

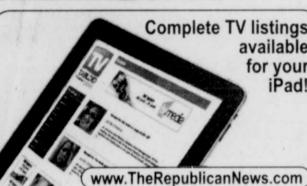

Currently starring as David Rossi in CBS's "Criminal Minds," the actor is also known for voicing Fat Tony in Fox's "The Simpsons." Back in 2007, he was nominated for an Emmy for his supporting role in the hit miniseries "The Starter Wife." Before that, he also starred in "Joan of Arcadia" and "First Monday."

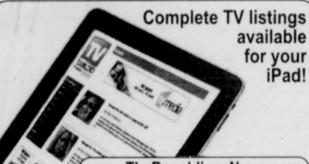

His film career spans several decades as well, with credits in "The Money Pit" (1986), "The Godfather:

Part III" (1990), "Body of Evidence" (1993), "Searching for Bobby Fischer" (1993), "Forget Paris" (1995), "Thinner" (1996) and; of course, "The Simpsons Movie" (2007).

Q: My grandmother in Texas collected pottery throughout the 1940s and '50s. One of her favorite pieces features the image of an Indian and was made by Rookwood. She had it appraised in 1960 and was told it was painted by Matthew A. Daly in about 1900. The value at that time was $250. Even though I love the piece, I certainly would sell it if it is valuable. -- Susan, West Palm Beach, Fla. A: According to "Warman's Rookwood Pottery: Identification and Price Guide" by Denise Rago and Jonathan Clancy and published by Krause, your vase is currently worth about $10,000 ... not a bad appreciation since 1960.

Q: My dad lived in Colorado and was an avid fisherman. Needless to say, he accumulated quite an array of fishing items, including rods, reels, tackle and three older creels. I would like to determine values. Do you have any suggestions? -- Lon, Pueblo, Colo. A: There are several guides that might be helpful. My favorite is "Fishing Collectibles: Identification and Price Guide" by Russell E. Lewis and published by Krause. Copies are available at www.amazon.com. This reference features current pricing for hundreds of fishing collectibles with more than 2,000 illustrations in full color.

Q: My grandmother had a doll that was given to her by an uncle during World War II. Can you tell me its value? -- Win, Surprise, Ariz.

A: A free appraisal is generally worth what you pay for it. In other words, if it is important to know the value of an antique of collectible, you can contact dealers in your area for their opinion. A more accurate assessment would be an appraisal by a certified professional, and you should, of course, expect to pay for this service. Since you live fairly near Phoenix, I suggest you consult the business pages of the phone book and check the listings under "appraisers." Make certain the appraiser you hire specializes in personal property, not real estate. They are listed together as a rule. You can get either a verbal appraisal, which is less expensive, or a written opinion, which is best for insurance purposes.

USE BOOKS TO TEACH KIDS ABOUT MONEY

by Lynn Little, Extension Educator, Family and Consumer Sciences University of Maryland

Extension Five-year-old Amanda was excited. She had received a $10 bill as a birthday gift. She begged her parents to take her to the mall so she could buy a favorite toy. Sound familiar?

Parents often wonder how they can help their child learn sound money management skills at an early age. Telling them "money doesn't grow on trees" usually doesn't sink in when they seem to want everything. Children are good at mastering the concept of "want" long before they seem to understand "cost" and "need."

Children's books are a good way to begin teaching money management concepts to youngsters of all ages. Even preschool children can learn from books such as The Berenstain Bears - Trouble with Money. A child in first-to-third grades would enjoy learning from Arthur's Funny Money. Children who can count and use a calculator could learn money skills from Alexander, Who Used to be Rich Last Sunday. These are examples of the many good books available that a parent could use to teach money skills.

What should a parent look for when selecting such a book? Consider the age for whom the book was written. Preschoolers have difficulty understanding concepts such as time and value. They may think a nickel is more valuable than a dime because it is larger. Using credit cards and checks may confuse them. They have an understanding about buying things, but little understanding of limited money resources. Elementary school-age children are eager to learn, but their attention span is short. Making choices is dif-

JROTC VISITS GETTYSBURG - A total of 10 cadets from the Northern High School JROTC loaded into two vans headed for the Gettysburg Battlefield for a twoday staff ride. Cadets participating included Trace Livengood, Alex Allman, Daniel Baechtel, Ryan Glotfelty, Brady Benton, Trevor Green, Shelby Simmons, Cordel Yoder, Jimmy Redmond, and Jeremy Moon. Prior to the trip, each cadet was required to select a key leader and write a research paper about that key leader from the Battle of Gettysburg, focusing on leadership principles and decisions as well as the outcome of those choices, both positive and negative. The first stop was the Gettysburg Visitors Center, where the cadets saw a 10-minute film about the battle describing in detail the leaders, units, decisions, and political environment that framed this three-day decisive Civil War battle. Following the film, the cadets viewed the 360 degree painting that captured the Battle of Gettysburg known as the Cyclorama. "The way the painting in the distance migrated into the forefront display coupled with the integrated audio-visual demonstration along with narrative was nothing short of spectacular," said a group spokesperson. "All the cadets enjoyed both activities and set the stage for the next day when the cadets would visit the battlefield." Day two of the staff ride began on Culp's Hill and ended on Little Roundtop with numerous stops in between At each stop along the battle, one or two cadets would take turns talking about what their leaders contributed during that part of the Battle of Gettysburg. The final activity was a return visit to the Gettysburg Visitor's Center to look at the museum. Above left is Cadet Redmond shown reading one of the many placards located throughout the Gettysburg battlefield. Above right cadets Allman, Moon, Simmons, and Benton head back to the vans. Below, cadets Allman, Baechtel, and Livengood discuss their leaders at Devils Den. Northern High School JROTC is under the guidance of senior Army instructor LTC (ret) Jack C. Riley and Army instructor SGM (ret) Melvin L. Hoffman. The next JROTC trip is to Quantico Marine Corps Base and Andrews Air Force Base in May 2013.

As the old saying goes, "First Impressions are Powerful", and my first impression of Amy Buser was one of impretence, class and a delightfully warm friendliness. ... Ours was a lengthy buying process which was complicated the fact we live six hours away from Garrett County so much of the work was done by phone and emails. Amy was LWAYS prompt with her replies and extremely versatile in her ability to "think outside the box" as far as different operties to show us. ... Once she sent me the email ... I knew, as did my husband, that she had found us our dream mme. I know this may sound cormy, but this property truly had everything we both wanted and had dreamed for. This a testament to Amy's ability to read us correctly and find what we truly wanted and could afford. However, through is fault of Amy's this home buying experience was fraught with delays and extended deadlines. ... but throughout the

They were compassionate and ring in helping us feel more confident in the decision to sell our home. Lana was very owledgeable about helping us decide on an asking price. She was professional, patient,

They both took on tasks side their responsibilities for us when we could not physically be there. All in all, we re very happy with the professional yet caring way in which Lana and Larry were able to ell our home. I don't believe that any other realtor could have done as good of a job as them!

> ON A PERSONAL NOTE by Lucretia Sines

I would like to take this opportunity to wish everyone a Happy Thanksgiving. It is so hard to believe that it is Thanksgiving week and that the year 2012 is almost over. I have always heard that time flies when you get older, although I prefer to think of it as "time flies when you are having fun." I guess I must have had a lot of fun this year because the year is flying by way too fast! I do believe that the years go faster because we are too busy to notice the little

The Walk of a Lifetime is just what it claims to be. It is an account of a man who followed hard after God for over sixty years. He relates in unvarnished terms where he is with God at this point in his life and tells how he got there. He describes how it felt to discover that he was the father of two profoundly mentally handicapped children. He relates to losing his beloved wife and the struggle he has with trying to maintain a Christian home for his two handicapped children. He talks about growing old. Added to the mix and foremost in his presentation is how he was successful and how he failed in trying to walk in a Godly life.

College Makes Wreaths To Help Benefit Festival

In the true spirit of giving, the Garrett College community rallied to create and donate wreaths to be auctioned during the 2012 Festival of Trees, the annual fundraiser to benefit the Dove Center, Garrett County's resource for victims of domestic violence and sexual abuse.

Though it is a busy time of year on the college campus, many department staff members and students made the time to meet the need.

"As the holidays approach, everyone has more to do than usual," said Ann Wellham, dean of marketing and enrollment management. "At Garrett College, we are preparing for the beginning of final exams and the end of the semester. Because the college was closed for a week during the recent storms, everyone is scrambling to catch up. But in the midst of chaos, time was set aside to decorate these wreaths.' Some staff members said they had been reluctant to commit to making wreaths because they were afraid they would not be able to get them completed. It was a struggle at first for some to find the time to allocate to the project," Wellham said. "But once they actually got started talking about their ideas for decoration themes and getting materials together, everyone really got into the spirit and said they had a great time working on their projects." Sparked by creative energy, the wreath decorators followed themes that ranged from traditional to unique. A competition was held on campus to select the top contenders in the student category and the staff/faculty category. In all, 24 wreaths were made and donated for auction at the festival.

The Festival of Trees is slated for this Friday and Saturday, Nov. 23 and 24, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds Exhibit Hall. More information on the festival is available online at www.fotgc.com.

Garrett Graduate At Al Colloquium

Doug "Hutch" Hutchins, a Garrett College graduate with a degree in adventure sports management, will be the speaker for the Adventuresports Institute colloquium next Tuesday, Nov 27, at 6:30 p.m. in Continuing Education Room 224. This presentation is free and open to the public.

Hutchins owns and operates the Cumberland Trail Connection (CTC), which has been recognized for its quality of service and sales of bikes and other outdoor sporting equipment. Locating his business at the end of the C&O Canal and the beginning of the Great Allegheny Passage has allowed Hutchins to expand services, hire more staff, and build on the growing outdoor tourism in that area. He is among a group of business owners working together to enhance tourism in the area for economic growth.

During his presentation at the colloquium, Hutchins will discuss his business and how adventure sports contribute to the growth of other businesses in his community.

More information on the Adventure Sports program or the colloquium is available by calling 301-387-3330.

The Springs Mennonite Church will host its 10th annual Christmas Caravan on Saturday, Dec. 1. All proceeds this year will go to the American Cancer Society through the "Just Imagine Miracles" Relay for Life team. The day will include a tour of several homes in the local area.

Registration will be held from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the church, which is located at 1685 Springs Road along Route 669. It is approximately three miles from Route 40 in Grantsville and six miles from Salisbury, Pa.

There is no set fee to participate in the caravan. Instead, participants are given the opportunity to make a donation to the American Cancer Society.

Home tours will begin at 1 p.m. and continue until 7 p.m. (unless otherwise noted). The homes to be toured are located throughout the surrounding areas of Salisbury. Springs, Grantsville, and Accident. A booklet containing driving directions to each home and a brief write-up on each participating family's holiday traditions will be given at registration. Names of the host families are not released prior to the tour for privacy reasons. To celebrate the 10th year of hosting the Christmas Caravan, the group has added a special stop, a holiday shopping bazaar, and silent auction of holiday gifts. This will be held at the Folk Meeting House in Springs, Pa. (located across the street from the Springs Mennonite Church). The vendors will be open from 1 to 4 p.m., and a silent auction will take place during those hours as well.

Each vendor will donate an item for the silent auction, with all proceeds going to the American Cancer Society through the relay team noted above.

Vendors will sell items the day of the bazaar and will also be taking orders, with guaranteed Christmas delivery. Persons not participating in the entire caravan are also invited to visit the Folk Meeting House from 1 to 2013 will be the American Cancer Society's 100th year in service. By contributing to the local Relay for Life team, donors are making it possible for persons in the local area to receive help that otherwise might not have been available, a team spokesperson said. Donations also help in the search for a cure for the disease. Caravan committee members include Debbie Brenneman, chairperson, April Hershberger, and Carolyn Tice (booklet editor/ pub-

NEWMAN MARCHES IN PHILADELPHIA Cameron Newman, a trombone player and the assistant drum major at Northern High School, marched down the streets of Philadelphia on Thanksgiving Day last week, having been selected to march with the Tournament of Bands All-Star Marching Band in the 93rd annual ABC6/ Dunkin Donuts Philadelphia Thanksgiving Day Parade. He is pictured above in almost the center of the photo, slightly to the left. The band involves accomplished high school musicians from across the East Coast. The students, who all march in bands that compete in the Tournament of Bands circuit, are selected based on their accomplishments and talent. The group met for the first time at 1 p.m. on Wednesday and practiced all day and into the evening. Newman said he "had a blast" meeting everyone, although he was exhausted by the end of the parade on Thursday. A junior at NHS, Newman is a member of the stage band, jazz band, men's chorus, and concert chorus, in addition to his leadership position in the marching band. He is the vice president of the junior class, and is involved in the student council of the high school. The musician is the son of Lynn and Carol Newman, Grantsville. He reported that he enjoyed the experience, and will apply again next year. One other Garrett County student marched in the parade previously. Michelle Welch, a 2012 graduate of Southern and now a student at Frostburg State University, was selected for and marched with the All-Star TOB color guard in the 2009 parade. "ON A WINTER'S EVE" is the name of the 2012 annual holiday concert that will be presented by the Garrett Community Concert Band this Sunday, Dec. 2, in the Garrett College auditorium, beginning at 2:30 p.m. The program will include its usual wide variety of holiday favorites, from classical to contemporary, including some with "international flavor," according to GCC Band conductor Moe Turrentine. Several of the numbers will highlight the percussion section, where some two dozen different instruments will be played throughout the program. Soloists include Tom Simpson, trumpet;

Libby Riley, flute; Lindy Moebs, piccolo; and Garrett

Yoder, spoons. Tickets for the program, which may be purchased at the door, are $8 for adults, $2 for students, and free for those age 6 and under. A variety of musical gift items will be available for purchase in the lobby before the concert and during intermission. The GCC Band is a non-profit organization affiliated with Garrett College, and is open to all persons who enjoy playing a band instrument, regardless of age and experience level. There are no auditions required and no dues. The band receives some financial support from the Garrett County and Maryland State arts councils. The Garrett College auditorium is handicapped-accessible.

They were soldiers once and young. So titled is one of the best tomes describing what it was like to be a soldier during the Vietnam conflict.

But there are a number of men here in Garrett County - now between age 55 and 65 - who make looking up the topic on the Internet unnecessary, because they can provide a firsthand account of what it was like to serve

Several of these former soldiers gathered together the week of Veterans Day and provided some insight into their own involvement in that lengthy, controversial military engagement.

Robert Dixon, Deer Park, was a master chief on a nuclear submarine, and while he wasn't exactly in a combat zone, his assignment had plenty of its own dangers.

Spend Locally...

With the Black Friday, Cyber Monday, etc., numbers now essentially tallied, its seems that holiday shopping in the United States is off to an excellent start, and not really indicative of the struggling, sluggish economy that has been so evident prior to and throughout 2012. While it is way too premature to assume, based on the current shopping figures, that our economy is healthy once again, this is a positive step.

A concern, however, to small-town, local business owners is the growing negative impact of the Internet on their bottom lines. The level of shopping online a practice that is so easy, convenient, and generally quite competitive from a pricing standpoint - has increased rather dramatically again this year, and there is no reason to believe that it will not continue to do so with each successive year. The more dollars that are spent online, the fewer dollars are spent in one's local economy, and that is truly unnerving for local business owners.

There is an article in this section today that focuses on this very issue, as Maryland Comptroller Peter Franchot noted publicly how important it is for residents to support their local businesses. He makes many valid points.

Local jobs – generally held by local residents – are obviously dependent upon sales. A loss of sales means a loss of jobs. Money spent online leaves the community, never to return. Money spent in the community ica. is actually an investment in one's community, as it not only helps maintain local employment, but also provides the means for business owners to continue To the Editor: to financially support local worthy causes.

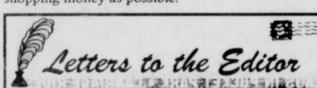

When a student athlete's parent is trying to sell advertising in a sports program, that parent depends almost entirely on the local businesses to purchase those Baptist Church's messages ads. Almost never will one sell an ad to a non-local, online business.

Local businesses are also a key part of the local tax base, from which monies are generated to finance the and residents. county budget. The closure of a business, then, would also take a bite out of the amount needed to finance plifies the point I was trying the county budget.

Online customer service is also quite different from "We all will meet our maker," that which can be provided on a face-to-face basis by a along with something perlocal business, and often by a good friend, a neighbor, taining to we all should "pray" or an acquaintance.

So, as wonderful as Internet technology is for communication and information purposes, there is also Baptist Church is using to going to be a significant - perhaps even devastating toll that is likely to be exacted. We just don't yet know offensive messages.

In the meantime, we encourage all local residents to use it to the fullest. Though do their best to spend locally as much of their holiday just because you can do someshopping money as possible.

To the Editor: This year concludes the fifth annual Festival of Trees. I am writing to thank all the amazing volunteers and the handful of planners and organizers who have worked all five years to bring this to the point of hoped-for success in every aspect. FOT is truly a volunteer-driven event. It may be a very long time before we see real "world peace," but what better place to start than by helping our own local people find the way within their homes and their own lives? Our community volunteers show how much they believe this by supporting the staff persons who help people when they most need it! were also sure to keep religion and politics separate. The Bible is a beautiful religious text composed of a variety of essays, stories, and poems from ancient cultures very different than our own. There are so many positive messages held within the Bible's pages, I am shocked that one church in the area seems so driven to use them for possibly offensive purposes. If we followed a truly biblical model of marriage, polygamy would be legal and women would have few rights and be required to cover their head while worshipping, and could never become pastors, ministers, or leaders of faith. We are not a nation of simple absolutes, but a nation of very different people, and if we reflect on what brings much credit for their courage us together rather than what tears us apart, a far more positive message can be conveyed.

Jeremy Gosnell Oakland To the Editor:

Ah, the tribulations of home ownership. After the snow had melted from the last storm, I knew I had my work cut out for me to get rid of the fallen trees and limbs. To the Editor: Republicans, you lost the most recent elections because you ran lousy campaigns; if you raise taxes, you will have lost Americans more than your seat, but we will lose our seats to this pernicious party that calls itself "Democrats."

I was a Dem for 68 years and saw it change to one tainly have that freedom and whose principles are ruining the country, so I changed parties. Yet, you have let us down. Do not raise taxes! This president will not give cuts now or later; it will not

I have watched Maryland go from the most prosperous "free" state to one of the highest taxed; one that conwe will meet our maker or sistently votes Democrats into power. The Dems have ruined our great state of Maryland. Our most prosperous citizens and businesses have left the state. We have been redistricted so that there is no county of refuge in Maryland. We are no longer represented by those who have any of our interests at heart; we have become sheep, to be shorn and used. We citizens have lost our "free" state to slicktalking politicians who use our taxes as a slush fund for their continuance in office via giving our $$ to their causes

Shame on you! We all suffer when we citizens allow our leaders to lead us down this apathetic path. To the Editor: At the November 14 "state of the lake" meeting held by DNR Secretary John Griffin, I was unable to get on the agenda to ask a few financeoriented questions. Hopefully having them appear in The Republican will yield a response.

These questions center on funding for Deep Creek Lake. . As a part-time resident who has paid taxes and fees here for 40 years, I would like 304-329-3195 to know how much of these are going to efforts to save the bay and how much of my taxes and fees are dedicated to saving the lake? 2. With respect to the Waterway Improvement Fund, which was created in 1966 and funded by a 5% excise tax on vessels, I have the following question: How much money has been collected for this fund from the sale of boats in Garrett County since its inception? 3. In your statement in The Republican, you say that Waterway Improvement funds are available only to "create channels for heavy commercial vessels." We have no such vessels at Deep Creek Lake, so by extension, these funds would not have been available for DCL uses. However, the web site on this program suggests a wide range of activities which can be funded from the Waterway Improvement Fund. My question is: Why hasn't this fund been available for Deep Creek Lake or any other lake or stream in Garrett County? Though it is very late, how can we amend this fund to dedicate money for dredging at Deep Creek Lake and any other lake or stream in Garrett County? 4. The state owns the lake, but has a policy of not providing funding, making this Maryland natural resource a special exception. Where in Maryland state law is it stated that this publicly owned lake will only be supported by private funds? Was this in the law when the state purchased the lake? Is this policy supported by the governor? By the General Assembly? Is it

Black Damp Century

BLACK DAMP CENTURY is the name of a recently released book written by former Oakland resident Kerry George, who began a career in coal mining in 1966 with Consol Coal Company. He was hired by the government in 1976 as a coal mine safety inspector in Ohio and was transferred in 1984 to Oakland, where he lived and worked until 1993. According to the publisher, the book is the story of William "Buck" Storm, the tyranniwhose wartime experiences have deeply flawed him. He respects nothing and no one. Jesse Kamin is the passionate son of a coal miner killed in an Ohio mine explosion and raised by a mother full of hate. Violence and anarchy in the United Mine Workers drive him to the government. By chance, he is pitted against Storm. "Black Damp Century is a story of strife, loyalty, and fury, as told with a backdrop of the historical events of the 20th century, beginning with the bloody battle at Blair Mountain in West Virginia," said the publisher. "These violent clashes deeply mar the coal operators, the miners, and the government for generations. The miners' world holds multiple forms of black damp, which threatens to suck the oxygen from the lives of all involved." The Preston Community The book's climax takes place in Garrett and Allegany Arts Center, 123 South Price counties. A fourth-generation coal miner and a graduate of Ohio University, George is now retired and resides in Arts and Craft Fair on Friday, Invited to contact George online via Facebook at Black Damp Century.

Amish Grace To Be Discussed At Book Club Mtg.

A monthly book club sponsored by Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church will meet in the back room of Perkins Restaurant, McHenry, on Thursday, Dec. 6, at 7 p.m. The book club invites all who share the interest of selecting, reading, and discussing a new book each month.

The next discussion will be of the novel Amish Grace, How Forgiveness Transcended Tragedy by Donald Kraybill. The book tells the story of the one-room Amish schoolhouse in Nickel Mines, Pa., where on Oct. 2, 2006, a 32-year-old gunman entered and shot 10 girls executionstyle, killing five and leaving the others critically wounded. He then shot himself as police stormed the building.

"Amish Grace explores the many questions this story raises about the religious beliefs and habits that led the Amish to forgive so quickly," the spokesperson continued. "It examines forgiveness embedded in a separatist society and questions if Amish practices parallel or diverge from other religious and secular notions of forgiveness. It also asks why and how forgiveness became international news."

This book was to be discussed by the club last month, but the meeting had to be canceled because of the win-

The Walk of a Lifetime is just what it claims to be. It is an account of a man who followed hard after God for over sixty years. He relates in unvarnished terms where he is with God at this point in his life and tells how he got there. He describes how it felt to discover that he was the father of two profoundly mentally handicapped children. He relates to losing his beloved wife and the struggle he has with trying to maintain a Christian home for his two handicapped children. He talks about growing old. Added to the mix and foremost in his presentation is how he was successful and how he failed in trying to walk in a Godly life.

SHS CADETS PRESENT PROJECT - Cadets from the Southern High School JROTC program recently presented their Veterans Day service learning project to area veterans and their spouses. Each year cadets plan and develop a service learning project as part of their curriculum. Their project this year focused on planning a Veterans Day program at the school and one at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland, and also a study of African American veterans and their contributions since 1775. During the Southern High program, cadets presented the colors, read "Flanders Field," and presented speeches using the theme "What would I tell veterans of 1775 about today's veterans?"

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

With the economic situation this year, we expect great need...

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the 15th year, The Republican newspaper and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is the WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

Republican

and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland and The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $125 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination. Many volunteers are working together to make sure the children of Garrett County stay warm this winter.

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Donations should be postmarked by December 5, 2012. Those collected after December 5 will be saved for next year's campaign.

Pundits had expected Delaney's margin in Montgomery County to render the rest of the district superfluous. To make the 6th District competitive, Gov. Martin O'Malley and Democrats in Annapolis moved more Democratic areas of Montgomery County into the district, while subtracting Republican areas of Baltimore, Carroll, Harford, and northern Frederick counties - places Bartlett had consistently won by wide margins. Only Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties remain untouched in the new district.

Bartlett has blamed his loss on that redistricting process, but the numbers tell a DECEMBER SUN - As December begins, the sun appears in front of the stars of Ophiuchus,* appearing to drift a degree a day eastward relative to the stars. The sun moves into the star group Sagittarius on the evening of December 17, where it stays until mid-January. (*Ophiuchus is the Serpent Doctor; the sun spends 21/2 weeks there, versus only six days in Scorpius.) The star group Capricornus can be seen low in the southwestern dusk. Other prominent evening zodiac groups in December are Aries and Taurus. On the other side of the sun is the star group Virgo, appearing in the eastern dawn sky. Other prominent zodiac groups at dawn are Leo and Gemini. In early December, sunrises in Garrett County are at about 7:20 a.m., while sunsets are at about 4:55 p.m. (9.6 hours of daylight). Around the end of December, Garrett County's sunrises are at about 7:35 a.m., and sunsets occur at about 5:05 p.m. (about 9.5 hours of daylight). So during December, the brighter stars are last seen at around 6:30 a.m. standard time, and then reappear at about 6 p.m. (late dusk).

DECEMBER MOON - Because of the full moon in late November, there will be evening moonlight on the first few days of December. By Dec. 6, the moon will have shifted to the morning sky, appearing half-full in the south at dawn. On the morning of Dec. 10, the crescent moon will appear close to the planet Saturn in the southeastern dawn. On the next morning, the crescent moon will be below the brilliant planet Venus. In the early morning of Dec. 13, the moon will swing from the morning to the evening side of the sun. On the evening of Dec. 15, a very slender crescent moon may be seen low in the southwestern dusk. To the left of the moon will be the planet Mars. On the evening of Dec. 19, the moon appears half-full (first quarter) in the southwestern dusk. Around this time of month, the moon's craters are at their best through binoculars or a small telescope. The moon appears near the bright planet Jupiter on Dec. 25. The moon will grow to full on the evening of Dec. 28.

DECEMBER PLANETS - The five nearest planets are easily seen by the naked eye during the year, four of them shining steadily in contrast to the twinkling stars. (Mercury, only seen close to the horizon, may flicker.) Mars can be seen very low in the southwestern dusk. The very bright planet Jupiter is prominent in the east in the evening hours. Venus rises about two hours before the sun and dominates the eastern dawn. To the right and higher than Venus is the planet Saturn. In early December, the planet Mercury can be seen very low in the southeastern dawn. Mercury will appear below and to the left of Venus.

DECEMBER STARS - The Big Dipper's scoop can be seen low in the north-northeast. The star group Cassiopeia, resembling a stretched out letter "M," is high in the north. The brightest early evening star is Vega, seen in the northwest. In the northeast is the bright golden star Capella. As the hours pass, Vega drops lower and Capella gets higher. The star group Orion with his three-star belt can be seen

Making Plans

Arranging appointments and maintaining busy schedules is an unremitting task; weeks can fly by in a whirlwind of activities. Sometimes, we need to assess our expenditure of time. Are we using it wisely? Is God marked on our calendar? This consideration affects all of our plans; God wants us to make Him a part of each day. Our stress level can decrease as our faith in God's power increases. "In his heart a man plans his course, but the Lord determines his steps" says Proverbs 16:9. Let God help you with your plans, and plan to visit your house of worship every week.

Finding Meaning in Your Life

For many of us, the question of finding meaning or significance in our lives is a non-issue. We find our careers meaningful, and our families, friends, and recreational activities provide essential sources of meaning or significance. But, sometimes people have accidents or illnesses which call all of that into question. If an accident or illness prevents you from working, you may feel an overwhelming sense of meaninglessness. Likewise, parents whose lives are made meaningful by their children may feel a tragic sense of meaninglessness if they lose their children. The heartache of losing a loved one or a significant other is partly a sense that our life has lost something essential to it. In these cases, it is imperative that one find meaning elsewhere in one's life. While this is not always simple or easy, it is possible, even in the worst of cases. Imagine how drastically your life would change if you suffered a brain or spinal cord injury that left you paralyzed or unable to function as you once did. This sort of injury can be a tremendous challenge, and yet the vast majority of people who suffer these injuries are resilient. They bounce back and somehow find meaning in their life. There is always hope, and even if the hope is not for a full recovery, at least it can be for a meaningful life.

-Christopher Simon

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the LORD, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future."

Music to their ears: CBS airs fifth live Grammy nominations concert with host LL Cool J, Rick Ross,

Grandmaster Flash, Melle Mel

By Rebecca Potter

It's been a great year for music, and the Grammys are coming to showcase some of the best artists and albums of the year. And while February may seem far away, CBS will broadcast "The Grammy Nominations Concert Live! — Countdown To Music's Biggest Night" with co-hosts Taylor Swift and LL Cool J on Wednesday, Dec. 5.

This is the fifth time that the nominations have been released live during a television special. While two-time Grammy winner LL Cool J has hosted the Nominations Concert since its 2008 inception, he hasn't had a co-host since he was paired up with Swift in the very first broadcast. Now, having already won six Grammys of her own, Swift returns this year to share the cohosting duties with LL Cool J.

Joining the festivities for the evening are three-time Grammy winning group Maroon 5 and country singer/songwriter Luke Bryan, who will be performing during the special. Recently added to the lineup was the group fun., who just finished their debut on "Saturday Night Live" a few weeks ago, and three-time Grammy winner Ne-Yo. After the hour-long nomination announcements, there will be an exclusive concert from Maroon 5, coming off the release of their fourth studio album, Overexposed Since its beginnings, the nomination show has been filmed in Los Angeles, but this year's concert is making the move to Nashville, Tenn., and will be held at the Bridgestone Arena.

Nashville is not a surprising choice, given it has some of the best musical history that North America has to offer and is home to the annual Country Music Awards, the Grand Ole Opry, and the Country Music Hall of Fame. "Having The Grammy

"This announcement further validates that Nashville is a destination on the rise, and our rich musical heritage has once again put us on the stage. This is tremendous news for Nashville, and we look forward to working with The Recording Academy to ensure the show's success." "The Grammy Nominations

Perry reprises guest role in "The Good Wife"

By Sheila Busteed

SPLIT LOYALTIES: Matthew Perry plans to start the new year by bouncing back and forth between two competing networks.

The star of NBC's "Go On" will reprise his guest role as Mike Kresteva in CBS's "The Good Wife." His new appearance is scheduled to air early in

This announcement may leave fans of "Go On" worried it's a sign the show will be canceled, but they shouldn't start panicking yet. Back in October, NBC announced it had ordered a full season of the freshman series, which should give its viewers hope that the show will stick around. However, the series hasn't exactly gained mustsee status among the network's new orders, so the possibility of a second season is still up in the

Perry did well for himself the last time he appeared on "The Good Wife," establishing character as a strong antagonist for Alicia Florrick (played by Julianna Margulies) and her estranged husband, Peter (Chris Noth). In his first appear-ance, he clashed with Alicia when she joined a blue-ribbon panel investigation of a shooting. Perry returned in the next episode as a surprise rival for Peter in his bid to become the next gover-

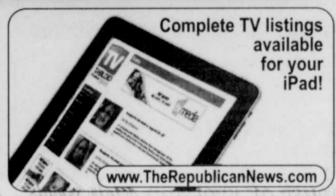

This isn't the first time Perry has taken on a side project while involved in a successful regular gig. When "Friends" was still on the air, he did a three-episode arc as Joe Quincy in "The West

Matthew Perry is set to return to "The Good Wife"

Ever since "Friends" ended in 2004, Perry has bounced back and forth between television and film work. He's done well for himself, with "Studio 60 on the Sunset Strip" earning critical acclaim, followed by the short run of "Mr. Sunshine," a show he created himself. He also starred in "The Whole Ten Yards" (2004) and "17 Again" (2009)

· Athletes playing baseball on steroids have frequently been in the news in recent years, but drugs are nothing new in America's national sport. During the late 1960s and throughout almost all of the '70s, Dock Ellis was a valued pitcher who played for several teams, including the Pittsburgh Pirates. On June 12, 1970, Ellis took LSD, under the mistaken belief that it was an off day for his team. By the time he realized that the Pirates were scheduled to play against the San Diego Padres that evening, it was too late. The drug proved to have no ill effect on Ellis; in fact, he pitched a no-hitter. When he recounted the event to a reporter 12 years later, he said he remembered only bits and pieces of the game, though he felt euphoric. Many years later, after being treated for addiction, Ellis became a coordinator for an anti-drug program in California. • It's been reported that Albert Einstein did not like to wear socks.

The fate of the crew remains a mystery to this day.

On Dec. 5, 1933, the 21st Amendment to the U.S. Constitution is ratified, repealing the 18th Amendment and bringing an end to the era of national prohibition of alcohol in America. One of the 10-letter words above does not belong with the rest, based on a simple, straightforward reason. Which is the odd one out? Note: It does not have to do with parts of speech or meaning.

Q: I have my mother's Shaker spinning wheel that was appraised in 1980 for $600. It was identified as made in an upstate Shaker community in New York, probably during the mid-1800s. How can I find someone to appraise it again and, perhaps, find a worthy home for this fine wheel? -- Nancylee, Oxford, Conn.

A: What a gracious thing to consider doing. Since your spinning wheel likely originated in New York, contact the New York State Museum. Ask to speak to the curator and tell him or her about your wheel and ask if they would be interested in accepting it and, if so, could they provide you with an appraisal for your personal records. The address and phone number are 222 Madison Ave., Albany, NY 12230, and 518-

Q: Could you please tell me how much a green lattice top, satin-glass fruit bowl and two candleholders are worth? -- Dixie, Albuquerque, N.M. A: Your question is much like me trying to put together a jigsaw puzzle with more than half the pieces missing. I recommend you show your bowl and candleholders to dealers in your area. If that doesn't work for you, begin researching glass and glass patterns. In addition to Internet sources, there are dozens of excellent books that you should find helpful.

Q: I have a graduation certificate from the Locker Method of Muscular Movement Business Writing Easy Method from 1920. It is beautiful, and I would love to know more about it. -- Mary, Kissimmee, Fla. A: I could find no record of the company that issued your certificate. Most certificates from this period often sell for less than $25. A document involving a historical person would, of course, be worth much more.

Q: I purchased a Star Wars puzzle at a flea market for $25. It is the "Aboard the Millennium Falcon," has 1,000 pieces and is complete. Good deal or bad deal? -- Rob, Albuquerque, N.M. A: Bad deal. According to the "Official Price Guide to Star Wars Memorabilia" by Jeremy Beckett, your puzzle is worth less than $10. I checked with two serious collectors, and they agreed with Beckett's appraisal.

AMONG THE NEW EXHIBITS at the Garrett County Historical Society's Transportation Museum in Oakland are this 1921 center-door Model T Ford sedan and a 1929 Harley-Davidson JDH motorcycle. The center-door T model is among the rarest of all the common Ford body types, as only about 180,000 of the 1921 models were reports. manufactured, and thus few of them remain intact today. Ford stopped manufacturing the center-door model in 1923 when it was considered "too old-fashioned." An interesting fact about this particular car is that its passengers over the past 90-plus years included Frank Sinatra, who happened to be a boyhood friend of the previous owner of the vehicle. The vehicle is owned by and currently on loan to the museum by Don Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park. Even rarer is the 1929 H-D motorcycle, owned and on loan by Tom McKee, which was produced in still lower numbers. This particular model, which when new sold for $370, was advertised as the "fastest model ever" in 1929, as it would reach 100 miles per hour. Although the design is more than 80 years old, the two-cam engine is still being produced today. The Transportation Museum, as well as the Garrett County Historical Museum and the Oakland B&O Railroad Station, will all be open special hours this Friday, Nov. 30, from 6 to 8 p.m., during the annual holiday lighting of the Oakland town tree at the railroad station. Admission is free. A variety of other festive events and activities are also scheduled for that evening.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL - An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended formula

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. Holocaust Survivor Gives GC Students irsthand Account by Peggy Santamaria

"It was amazing," said Garrett College student Tori mith following a luncheon with Holocaust survivor Leo retholz. She was one of udents from Beth Luers' Oth century world history class who had traveled to Baltimore to meet with the 1-year-old Bretholz and learn firsthand what the Holocaust was about.

"When you are reading Leo's book about what hapbened, it's not necessarily sinking in that these things really happened to people," $aid Smith. "But to meet him, and listen to him, you understand that he actually lived through this. And he's such happy person with such a good sense of humor."

For the last several years, Luers, Garrett College professor of humanities, has aken students to Baltimore o meet with Bretholz and earn about significant hisorical events from someone who actually lived them. The tudents, who had read Brethlz's book Leap Into Darkness, vere already familiar with the aga of his repeated escapes rom his Third Reich captors s a young man still in his eens. During his face-to-face meeting with these students, he recounted some of his experiences and showed them actual mementos.

"He brought out his yelow star that says 'Juif' and e showed them pictures of Sister Jeanne d'Arc, the nurse vno protected him after he had a hernia operation in a French hospital," said Luers. He was afraid he would be surned in to the Gestapo because the doctors and nurses enew he was a Jew. Sister eanne d'Arc told him he had

A. This is a very good example of one of the most basic working with all of the local laws of physics, the Conservation of Momentum. Newton's facilities to ultimately bring third law of motion states "for every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction." When you fire a rifle, you're Over the next several demonstrating exactly that law of physics.

Momentum is the product of mass times velocity. In ing on creating a web pres- America we often talk of mass in "pounds" and velocity ence on the Garrett County in "miles per hour," but the correct scientific units are kilo-Chamber of Commerce web grams (kg) for mass and meters per second (m/s) for veloc-

You might say, "How can it be zero afterward when the tors, as well as integrate social bullet is obviously moving?" The important thing to rememmedia to communicate and ber is that velocity is not just speed, but has a direction, too, engage potential groups. She and when something moves in the opposite direction, it's

The equation is simple: $M_1v_1 + m_2V_2 = 0$

Now let's put in some simple numbers as a rough exand venues, to work together ample. Suppose a bullet weighs 3 grams (m2 = 0.003 kiloon the group sales and margrams) and leaves the gun barrel at $V_2 = 1,000$ m/s. The product of 0.003 times 1,000 gives 3 units of momentum, 3 kg m/s. Conservation of Momentum dictates that the rest our local facilities and part- of the system is going to have Mivi = -3 kg m/s. That's

But what is "the rest of the system"? If it's just a rifle Christian. "It is our goal to hanging in free space, where the mass of the gun is M1 = provide a great experience to 3 kg, the velocity in the backward direction must be v1 = these groups and entice the -1 m/s. However, when you brace the gun against your individual group participants shoulder, then "the system" becomes [you plus the rifle], to come back for another and the total mass may be typically about 90 kg. In that case, the backward velocity drops to -0.033 m/s, which is Persons who have in- quite small. An astronaut firing a rifle in free space would formation about a group, indeed start to move backward slowly. When a hunter has his feet planted firmly on the ground, then "the system" is connected to the earth, and the mass M1 is so huge that the velocity vi becomes virtually zero.

It is also possible to build in a means of absorbing the momentum of recoil. A military cannon, firing a much heavier projectile, sits on a support (a caisson) that moves back slightly to absorb the momentum. The recoilless rifles used by soldiers on a battlefield allow some of the explosive force to go backward, thus balancing the momentum. An automobile shock absorber works by compressing a spring that moves in a gooey fluid, so the energy and momentum get dissipated. Any mechanism where a small component moves against a spring can serve to dampen that "equal and opposite reaction."

The projecting force doesn't have to come from an explosion of gunpowder. An air rifle works by releasing compressed air, but only in one direction. That gives a child the experience of handling a firearm without much danger. (But recall the phrase "You'll shoot yer eye out, kid" from The Christmas Story).

Happy hunting! Dr. Sheahen lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

DRINKING WATER NOTICE Town of Accident Has Levels of Arsenic Above Drinking Water Standards

Our water system recently violated a drinking water standard. Although this is not an emergency, as our customers you have a right to know what happened, what you should do, and what we are doing to correct this situation.

We routinely monitor for the presence of contaminants in drinking water. The compliance determination by the Maryland Department of Environment for July - September 2012 show that our system exceeds the standard, or maximum contaminant level (MCL), for Arsenic. The standard for Arsenic is 10 micrograms per liter (ug/L). The average level of Arsenic over the last year for plant 2 was 11.0 ppb. What should I do?

· You do not need to use an alternative (e.g., bottled) water supply. However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor.

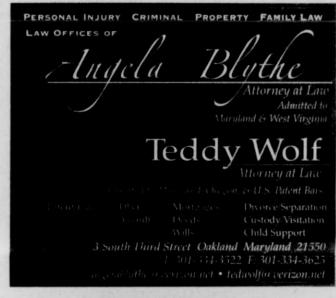

What does this mean: This not an immediate risk. If it had been, you would have been notified immediately. On January 23, 2006, the new Arsenic Rule became effective. This Rule changes the MCL for arsenic in drinking water from 50 micrograms per liter (ug/L) to 10 ug/L. Our system currently has arsenic concentration greater than newly established MCL. Some people who drink water containing arsenic in excess of the MCL over many years could experience skin damage or problems with their circulatory system, and may have an increased risk of getting cancer.

The town has received grant money to drill a replacement well. The bids have been received and reviewed. A pre-construction meeting has been scheduled for December 6, 2012. For more information, please contact Ruth Ann Hahn of Accident, MD, at 301-746-6346, or 104 S. North Street, Accident,

Please share this information with all the other people who drink this water, especially those who may not have received this notice directly (for example, people in apartments, nursing homes, schools, and businesses). You can do this by posting this notice in a public place or distributing copies by hand or

Commissioners Receive Update On DPU Projects

Department of Public Utilities director Linda Lindsey presented an update report on water and sewer projects to the Garrett County commissioners on Tuesday.

Thayerville Water System Lindsey reported that work on the $3.8 million distribution system for the Thayerville Water System is 50 percent complete. Excavating Associates Inc. has installed piping in the areas of Overlook Development and Quarry, Fox Den, and Leo Friend roads.

"The contractor is currently completing the main line and service laterals in the Mountainside Development," she said. "They're planning on continuing the work as long as weather permits."

She added that the contractor anticipates working on lines in the Glendale Road and Rt. 219 areas after the winter shutdown, which is sometime near the end of December.

"Basically those areas require the availability of paving, and, also, you can't work within the state roadway when there's a chance of a snow emergency," the direc

"Because we know we're going to have some temporary, complete closures of that road, especially in area near the Glendale bridge," Lindsey said.

NeXT GEN COMPETES AT FLL CHALLENGE - The NeXT GEN FLL Team 780, made up of Northern and Southern middle school students, recently traveled to Carroll County Community College to compete in this year's FIRST LEGO League (FLL) Senior Solutions challenge. The team was awarded the first place Robot Performance Award for its top table score for the tournament. Each team has three runs on the table (shown above) to obtain its highest score, which was 391 points for NeXT GEN. Each member of the team has worked for three months designing, building, redesigning, and programming a different mission on the table. Then the members run their mission during the two-minute 30-second timed robot round. Below is the team displaying its second place Research Award trophy, the Champion's Award trophy, and the first place Robot Performance trophy. In the front row, from left, are Wesley Dixon, Michael Hollingsworth, and Will Baker. Second row: Patrick Lee, Jessica Storck, Tori Miske, and Jake Toothman. Back row: mentors Ronni DiGiola, Arlene Lantz, and Phil Malone, and team member Jonah Facciolli. Not pictured are student mentors Aaron and Levi Lantz, Payton Dixon, and Robbie Browning and Gracious Professionalism is part of the ethos of FIRST. It's a way of doing things that encourages high-quality work, emphasizes the value of others, and respects individuals and the community. Coopertition produces innovation. At FIRST, coopertition is displaying unqualified kindness and respect in the face of fierce competition.

The team then presented its "Gramma Jamma" research presentation to the judges. The team has visited with local professionals and talked with senior citizens to find problems they might have on a daily basis. The team presented its research and development on an innovative gripper that allows seniors with hand tremors The team's first judging or poor vision to pick up in this year's FIRST LEGO session was core values, small objects like a pill. robotic hand. The team had five minutes to present its research and then five minutes to answer the judges' questions. So members had 10 minutes to explain three months of research. The judges were impressed with the team's innovative idea and awarded the team the second place research trophy.

The final judging session was technical judging, during which team members had to explain how their robots and missions work and why they built their attachments to the robot and programmed the robot the way they did. The judges were impressed with their use of the light and color sensors, as well as the way the team combined missions to score more points.

After lunch, the teams all had three opportunities on the table to show what their robot could do in two minutes, 30 seconds. NeXT GEN posted 391 points, which was the top score for the tournament. This earned

Another Wise Investment...

With the season of giving upon us and the end of another calendar year just a few weeks away, many people are currently making donations to a wide variety of non-profit organizations and causes, most of which would cease to exist were it not for such monetary support from generous citizens.

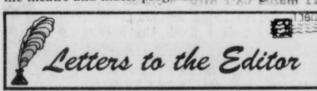

Organizations that typically reap the most in donations are those which provide some kind of important service to the community and its residents, such as fire departments, rescue squads, and a wide variety of charitable organizations and programs. Among the local ones that specifically come to mind are the Dove Center, Habitat for Humanity, House of Hope, Hospice, Cindy's Fund, and our own Warm the Children program, each of which address some type of true, measurable human need. Churches, youth organizations, and national health-related organizations (Red Cross, American Heart Association, American Cancer Society, etc.) are among other popular recipients.

Another genre of organizations that often has more difficulty raising funds are those that are connected to the arts. The importance of having protection from fire, a roof over one's head, warm clothing, enough food to eat, a safe haven from abuse, and emergency health care is clearly understood by everyone. The level of appreciation of the arts, however, runs the gamut, depending upon whom one asks. To some the arts – both still and performing – are simply extra frills that could be dispensed with at any time, and the importance of which would never be close to that of the aforementioned needs. To others, the arts are just as necessary, just as important, to the quality of life here on Earth as are clothing, food, and protection. To them, the arts provide the color in an otherwise dismal, black-and-white world.

This writer subscribes more to the latter end of that spectrum, and would add that research has shown time and time again the tremendous academic value to music and the arts in relationship to math and science, not to mention the mental health aspect of enjoying and participating in the arts.

However, for those to whom the importance of the arts is far less, an announcement received this morning gives a far more concrete, objective reason to support them, regardless of that opinion. Turns out that Maryland's non-profit arts sector has an annual as long as we did. impact of $1 billion on the state's economy, supports more than 11,000 jobs, and generates $37.8 million in tax revenues for Maryland's state and local govern- To the Editor: ments. Every $1 of the arts organizations' operating budgets generates $3.64 in total economic activity.

So, whether or not one enjoys the arts, support of non-profit arts organizations and programs is clearly a delegation will have a public wise economic investment in one's community. thank you for responding in the letters column, sharing your thoughts. RANDOM ACTS OF MATURITY (RAM) STUDENTS OF

THE MONTH - Southern High School recently recognized two senior students for the RAM Students of the Month based on character traits for September and October. The students were awarded $25 gift cards to Uno's Restaurant and Grill, the sponsor of the RAM program. Pictured above, from left, are Darren Large, principal Jim Maddy, and Lexi Botterbusch. The character trait for September was courage. Botterbusch exhibited courage after sustaining a severely broken collarbone during a soccer match. "Instead of just lying down and giving up due to the intense pain, Lexi came to school as she waited for her surgery to be scheduled. A surgeon from Memphis had to be flown in for her procedure. I think a young lady with so much determination to come to school in that shape, and to continue to excel academically, is a role model for other students and should be recognized," stated English teacher Robin Spiker. For the month of October, Large was nominated by his JROTC instructor, LTC Ralph Shaeffer, for exemplifying the October character trait tolerance in the JROTC program. "He, like many seniors, is at a stage where it is easy to think of his own needs being so close to graduation rather than the needs of underclassmen," Shaeffer said. "I think he uses emotional intelligence as a tool to better those around him.

WEATHERIZATION PROGRAM RECEIVES AWARD – Garrett County Community Action's Weatherization Assistance Program (WAP) recently received an award from the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development for its "outstanding" performance in Garrett County. "Since the Recovery Act was established in 2009, WAP has used ARRA funds to weatherize 356 homes in Garrett County, resulting in warmer homes in the winter, cooler homes in the summer, and lower overall utility bills," said an agency spokesperson. "ARRA funds also assisted in the installation of alternative energy systems and technologies in 60 low-income homes across the county." The award was presented to agency president Duane Yoder in October at Gov. Martin O'Malley's Housing Conference in Baltimore. Inscribed on the plaque is "For Energy Efficiency and Sustainable Practices in Single-Family Housing." Weatherizing homes is in line with GCCAC's goal of economic self-sufficiency and independence for its clients through maintaining or increasing assets. land Rotary Club received donations recently for the annual Christmas Project, which was established over 30 years ago. When the project began, approximately a dozen families were supported. This year, the club is providing gifts to over 200 families and 180 seniors. In order to accomplish the project, 24 Christmas trees are located in shops, businesses, and churches around the county. Tags on these trees indicate the child's age and gender, as well as his/her wish for Christmas. Envelopes are also available if a person wants to make a donation in lieu of the child's wish. Trees were placed at each location following Thanksgiving. The gifts will be gathered, sorted, and packaged at the Southern Rescue Squad hall on Friday, Dec. 14, and all gifts will be delivered to families the following day by the many volunteers who participate in the project. Above, from left, are Brian Boal, Founder of Landon's Library, presenting a $500 check from the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club to Christmas Project chairman Daryl Walters and Rotary president Bill Cheesman. Landon's Library will also donate 3,000 children's books to be delivered with the other gifts. The Oakland Rotary also extends thanks to the Western Maryland Corrections Institute and the Federal Corrections Institutes for making wooden toys for the project. This is the 16th year for Walters as chairman of the event. This photo was published last week but is being reprinted because the received information was incorrect.

BOUNCE BACK ENDS WITH CELEBRATION - Project Bounce Back, a community-wide charitable fundraiser organized by Brenda Brosnihan of Brenda's Body Shop (BBS) and Miss Maryland Joanna Guy, came to a festive close last Friday at the annual tree-lighting celebration in downtown Oakland, shown at left. The 40foot town Christmas tree in front of the Oakland train station was draped with garlands of the colored plastic balls, made by volunteers who worked for two weeks to string more than 3,000 balls collected throughout the Bounce Back project. The ball garlands were then hung on the tree, along with new lights, by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. Each ball on the tree represents a donation to the recipients Cindy's Fund and Children's Miracle Network Hospitals, Cindy's Fund chairman Sandy Bell spoke at the tree-lighting event about the impact of Bounce Back. "This project shows what can be accomplished when our community unites in a spirit of hope and generosity to support others," Bell said. "What better way to celebrate the season of giving?" THE PROPERTY OWNERS' ASSOCIATION OF DEEP CREEK LAKE (POA) SUPPORTS THE MEASURED APPROACH TAKEN BY THE MD DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES FOR THE WELL-BEING OF DEEP CREEK LAKE

Lately there has been considerable criticism of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) relative to its responsibility for the health and management of Deep Creek Lake. Some of this criticism is not warranted and could be counter-productive. The Deep Creek Lake Property Owners' Association recognizes that there is much to be done to preserve the enjoyment of Deep Creek Lake and we welcome the efforts of all interested organizations to advocate actions to improve the health and management of the lake. The POA, as the oldest and largest membership organization with an interest in the lake, has a long history of advocating on behalf of watershed property owners for the care and quiet enjoyment of lake residents. Over the past 2-3 years the POA has taken constructive steps, including hosting two workshops, to bring together state and local agencies as well as various organizations and interest groups to discuss issues affecting the health and well-being of Deep Creek Lake. Our ultimate goal is to improve communication and bring about a comprehensive approach to lake management which has not heretofore existed. While we have made progress toward this goal, there is still work to be done.

The POA supports the current efforts of the Department of Natural Resources to protect the quality of Deep Creek Lake. Specifically we thank the following officials and look forward to continuing to work with them as we all strive to preserve and protect our treasured Deep Creek Lake:

Secretary John Griffin for his willingness to travel to Garrett County and share with us his efforts on behalf of Deep Creek Lake.

Mr. John Wilson, DNR Assistant Director, Water Quality Working Group and staff for all they have done over the past several years to protect the waters of the lake.

Mr. Sherm Garrison, Water and Habitat Quality. Mr. Garrison and his staff continue to monitor the levels of nutrients, assess the status of aquatic vegetation, and define nutrient and sediment loadings into the lake.

Mr. Rich Ortt from the Maryland Geological Survey. Mr. Ortt is working on the Phase II Sediment Study. Some of the benefits of that program are the lake bottom contour map, the determination thus far that the lake sediments contain no toxic wastes, and the ongoing study of the depth and rate of lake sediment accumulation.

Ms. Carolyn Matthews, Deep Creek Lake Management Office. We are particularly grateful for Ms. Matthews' efforts to implement the new dock numbers tied to the county 911 dispatch system which has already proven to enhance personal emergency medical responses. More recently, the office is providing enhanced coordination with county zoning ordinance and watershed management.

The POA seeks to move forward with reasonable measures to benefit the watershed and supports the process of careful gathering of facts before taking premature actions. The ongoing DNR Sedimentation Study, which the county commissioners and POA helped to fund, is but one example of scientific data gathering that should help inform future decisions regarding lake sedimentation. We also support nutrient control of lake vegetation, a watershed approach to lake management, and a comprehensive management plan to allocate the waters of the lake for the maximum benefit of all those who use them. No lake the size of Deep Creek Lake is without any problems whatsoever, and the POA has not been hesitant in addressing problems as they arise.

The POA's efforts to work with the DNR on both a financial and study/planning basis to address concerns facing the lake go back many years. Our participation and advocacy on behalf of the health and well-being of the lake is an ongoing process and steadfast commitment of the POA.

We continue to wonder why our country has fallen so fast, and how did it happen? Anyone who has spent any time in the Bible can easily answer that question. Israel turned from God, again and again. Go back to Noah's days. Man had become so corrupt that God said He was sorry He created man. He was grieved in His heart. Take a look at Genesis 6:6. This brought on the flood, the evidence of which is easily found today. Only 8 people survived the flood via the Ark. A study of the creation of Adam and the reason for the flood should cause any thinking person to realize that God is our Creator, and our all, and a reason to take notice.

Use the Bible as a history book (1656 years, Adam to flood). Once you see how consistent God is, you will find that He will not tolerate the sins this world chooses.

Interesting, isn't it! Read on about Sodom and Gomorrah in Genesis 19:24. Our country just voted for the same lifestyle that Sodom &

Gomorrah had The place was destroyed by God-all (except Lot and family) who dwelled there were killed by fire. We cannot escape God's judgment.

Sounds a bit scary, doesn't it. Well, if you are following the world today, it should be scary-to see that God has, and will, continue to judge this world. The majority has voted for destruction. It is not escapable.

But, the Good News is that you can change and find that the future can be worthwhile. You can find that you can still connect with your Creator, Who truly cares for you. Choose Him, before He does what He has done before. He is our judge. Accept Jesus as LORD and SAVIOR, and repent—then begin a new life. Read His WORD. He loves all of us; however, He expects-justly-for us to love Him-and each other. Eternity is forever-turn to Him while you can. T. E. Doyle-questions? email: tedoyle@iceweb.net

Capital News Service ANNAPOLIS - An opinion released last Thursday by the attorney general's office said that same-sex couples in Maryland can obtain mar riage licenses as soon as Gov. Martin O'Malley "formally proclaims" the results of lastmonth's election, which he is expected to do on or about Dec. 6 (today).

The law, and therefore the licenses, will not be effective until Jan. 1. Attorney General Douglas Gansler answered other questions about the implementation of Maryland's same-sex marriage law in the 19-page opinion.

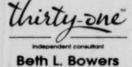

Gansler and Chief Counsel Adam Snyder found that postdating the licenses' effective date doesn't impose an unconstitutional waiting period on same-sex couples because it's the ceremony, not the license, which validates the marriage.

The attorney general's opinion came in response to questions from circuit court clerks from around the state in the wake of last month's voter approval of same-sex To Promote Health marriage. Same-sex marriage was passed by the legislature during this year's session, but opponents petitioned the law to a referendum.

Voters also approved same-sex marriage in Maine and Washington, and rejected a constitutional ban on same-

Even if one or both parties are engaged in a civil union in another state, with each other or a different person, they can still be issued a license in Maryland, said Alan Brody, deputy communications director for the attorney general's office.

While the courts may rule differently later, the opinion deals solely with the issue of BROAD FORD STUDENTS HELP INDIANA STUDENTS - Wendy Craver's fifth grade Enjoy the meal twice class at Broad Ford Elementary School recently held a book drive for tornado victims who attend Henryville (Ind.) Elementary School. "The response from the community was overwhelming, said a Broad Ford spokesperson. "The class collected 3,360 books. Because of this response, the students were able to donate books to Henryville, as well as a local charity, Landon's Library. The students would like to thank their fellow students for donating books, as well as parent volunteers, the staff at Broad Ford, community members, the Ruth Enlow Library, and especially End of the Line Books for its monetary donation for shipping.

At that location, they attempted to contact Hoover for the trespass investigation and stopped his vation and conservation area vehicle nearby when he drove out of the parking lot. Hoover was arrested after troopers observed his condition and his performance on field so-

Hoff was then sentenced by Judge Diane Leasure to two years in the Division of Corrections, with all but 120 days suspended.

He was also placed on probation with conditions that include drug treatment and the payment of court costs. Hoff was charged by investigators with Garrett County Narcotics Task Force officers who served a search and seizure warrant at his residence in August. A marijuana plant and numerous smoking devices were located near and in a garage on the property. Hoff acknowledged to officers the items were his, according to the state's attorney.

Also in Circuit Court this week, Shane Lee Fazenbaker, 20, Oakland, admitted to violating his probation, and Judge Sherbin reimposed his 15-month sentence that was previously suspended in a theft case. Thirteen months were then resuspended, and Fazenbaker continues on probation while serving 60 days on weekends.

He pleaded guilty to theft in April 2011 and was placed on probation after serving part of a split sentence. While on probation, he was charged with and convicted of driving on a suspended license.

In an unrelated case, Robert Vincent Vanderbilt, 20, Oakland, admitted in Circuit Court this week to violating his probation by failing to pay restitution. Sherbin then sentenced him to serve the 12-month sentence that was previously imposed.

Vanderbilt pleaded guilty last February to theft less than $1,000 for his role in the thest and pawning of jewelry from an Oakland resident. The suspended sentence was imposed at that time, and Vanderbilt was placed on probation with conditions mapping in the state.

Permits and inspections chief Jim Torrington, GC Department of Planning and Land Development, reported that housing construction permits increased by 33 percent for the first 11 months of this year, compared to all of last year. He said his department has issued 147 permits so far this year, compared to 111 last year.

"As you know, we adopted a new building code [ordinance] at the end of September," Torrington told the commissioners. "Six weeks prior to that we had 52 housing starts. I think that was somewhat in anticipation of changes for sprinkler systems and the adoption of the new energy conservation code."

"So, people are building smaller houses," he said.

"Yes," Torrington said. He noted, however, that the value of commercial property constructed this year increased "significantly," nearly 200 percent.

Last year there were 27 taxable commercial projects with a value of $2.8 million. So far this year, 26 projects are under way with a value

LCDs AND LEDs by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. What's the difference between an LCD and an LED? They're both forms of lighting, right?

A. The full names are: LCD = liquid crystal display, and LED = light emitting diode. They've both existed for half a century, but became more prominent in recent decades. They actually function in quite different ways.

The reason both are commercially successful is that they use very little energy. Fifty years ago lighting usually involved a bulb with a hot glowing filament, and that method of producing light used up a lot of energy. Therefore, batteries had to be replaced more often, and that created the incentive to develop these new technologies.

A liquid crystal doesn't produce any light of its own, but reflects light in a special way so you can read numbers and letters shown on the screen. It's the most common way of displaying information on hand-held devices.

LCDs work by modifying incoming light in a certain way, and then delivering that light back to the observer in just the right place. A liquid crystal has the property of optical activity, which means it rotates electromagnetic waves. Light first goes through a polarizer ahead of the liquid crystal; the "polarized light" that gets through has its electric field only in one direction (the horizontal or "X" direction). Then that light enters the liquid crystal, which is backed by still another polarizer, which is set to the vertical "Y" direction. Under no-voltage circumstances, the molecules of the liquid crystal rotate the polarization of the light 90°, which coincides with the second polarizer. Going forward, that light passes right through. The light then hits a mirror, travels back through the vertical polarizer and through the liquid crystal again (where it is rotated back 90°). When that light reaches the horizontal polarizer, it goes right through, back into the room

On the other hand, if a small voltage is applied to the liquid crystal, then it does not rotate the incoming light, so the horizontally polarized light strikes a vertical polarizer and completely stops. (This process is very similar to what sunglasses do.) No light at all comes back to the observer. The net result is that the liquid crystal unit looks bright or dark, depending on whether the voltage is off or on.

That provides the basis for a readable device: Seven little bars of liquid crystal can be positioned and wired arefully; then using small electrical voltages each bar can be activated or not, so as to construct any number from 0 to 9. Look at the face of a digital watch and read 10:34:54. As the seconds tick by, the voltages applied to each bar keep changing, and 10 seconds later it reads 10:35:04. The same kind of circuitry is used for commonplace devices

The great advantage of LCDs is that they use hardly any power to switch voltages. The disadvantage is that they produce no light of their own, so in a dark room, you can't see the display. Most digital watches have a little button that, when pressed, shines light onto the screen from behind:

then you can read the display A light emitting diode (LED) is entirely different. A diode is a circuit element that allows current to flow through in one direction, but not the other. In an LED, that current causes electrons to jump into a higher energy level in a semiconductor, and when they return to a low energy level, the energy of the transition comes off as light. Whether or not it "lights up" depends on the current flowing, which depends on the applied voltage. Controlling the voltage determines the information to be conveyed. The voltages required are comparable to an LCD, but the current is much greater. Still, it requires less power than illuminating a small incandescent "pilot light." The color of the emitted light depends on the exact energy levels built into the semiconductor via the mix of chemical elements in it. For several decades, the only type of LED you could buy was red, and they're still the cheapest to make. We've all gotten used to the little indicator lights on kitchen stove tops, TVs, alarm clocks, etc., all being red. Perhaps you remember that children's song that goes "Then one foggy Christmas eve, Santa came to say, 'Rudolph with your LED, won't you help my sleigh to see..." Oh, you don't remember it that way?

The huge change in LED technology that has taken place in recent years is that red is no longer the only color available. By using different combinations of elements to make the diode, the energy levels can be changed to produce many different colors. Those in turn can be blended to produce any color. In an LED-based TV, three LEDs occupy each dot, in each of the primary colors.

A white LED is actually an ultraviolet LED illuminating a white phosphor. The phosphor gives off white light. It's like a tiny, extremely efficient fluorescent lamp. Today we have white LEDs that are excellent "light bulbs." They're bright and last for a very long time. Unlike incandescent lamps, there is no filament to burn out, and LEDs use much less electricity to produce equal light. Anyone who has an LED flashlight doesn't want to go back to the old type with big batteries and bulbs that fail.

LEDs are certainly the "wave of the future" in lighting. At the present time, LED lights are expensive, so they're used mostly in "high value" applications. Think of an emergency-exit sign, or places where it's difficult to change a light bulb - such as very high ceiling fixtures where a janitor would need a super long ladder.

Fortunately, the price of LEDs is steadily declining, as manufacturing efficiencies improve. That effect will snowball. As more applications are found, the number produced will rise and the per-unit cost of LED lighting will decline. The CFL (compact fluorescent lamp) will probably be a transitional technology that will go away eventually as LEDs take over their market.

Laker Baseball Coach Speaker At Career Day

Garrett College head baseball coach Eric Hallenbeck recently visited Bel Air Elementary School in Cumberland to take part in the school's annual Career Day. Coach Hallenbeck talked with students about being a college baseball coach and the steps he took to reach that goal.

The students were asked to participate when Coach Hallenbeck described what the recruiting process entails. He also talked about the importance of being a student-athlete rather than an athlete-student.

"I stressed to the students the importance of education," he said. "When you graduate from high school and college you earn a degree, and that school or institution gives you a piece of paper that no one can take away from you. You have that forever. As an athlete there will come a day when you cannot play anymore, but you will always have your education."

Hallenbeck also explained how his signal system works with his teams.

"The students said they could keep a secret and wouldn't tell any of the teams we play during the season," he said. "So I showed them how our signal system works for us. They got a kick out of it. I hope they had fun. I sure did. I always enjoy talking to today's youth."

Making Plans

Arranging appointments and maintaining busy schedules is an unremitting task; weeks can fly by in a whirlwind of activities. Sometimes, we need to assess our expenditure of time. Are we using it wisely? Is God marked on our calendar? This consideration affects all of our plans; God wants us to make Him a part of each day. Our stress level can decrease as our faith in God's power increases. "In his heart a man plans his course, but the Lord determines his steps" says Proverbs 16:9. Let God help you with your plans, and plan to visit your house of worship every week.

We should ask ourselves every day what we can do to make a positive change in the world. This doesn't mean that we have to do something earth-shattering or radical every day, but we should do what we can, remembering that more is expected of those to whom much is given. Sometimes a positive change can come from something as simple as a smile or a kind word, and other times it may require significant effort or risk. One way to bring about positive change is to be a good role model or a mentor. If you work as a teacher or in the creative arts, you have a tremendous power to change people's lives. But even if you simply work in some area where you interact with people regularly, you can have a tremendous impact, for good or ill. If you have bigger plans about how to make a positive change in the world, such as doing volunteer work or starting a charitable organization, get started immediately, rather than waiting until you feel ready. Chances are, you will never be absolutely ready or know everything you need to know in order to get started without a hitch. We learn best by jumping in and doing. So, don't wait to change the world. Now is the time to start and you are as ready as you need to be to make a difference in the world.

Fox goes country: American Country Awards speak for the fans

By Rebecca Potter

Saddle up for a night of great country music performers and entertainers during the third annual American Country Awards, airing on Monday, Dec. 10, on

The American Country Awards honor the biggest and best in country music with voting directly from the fans. Unlike other music award shows, the ACAs let fans voice their opinions on things like performance by including categories such as Touring Artist of the Year. Tony- and Emmy-award winner Kristen Chenoweth and multiplatinum recording artist and country music great Trace Adkins will return to host the two-hour live event from Mandalay Bay in Las Vegas.

Plenty of country music's best will be performing that night, including Kip Moore, Jake Owen, Jason Aldean, Lady Antebellum, Dierks Bentley, Luke Bryan and Little Big Town. As if that isn't enough, Miranda Lambert, Natasha Bedingfield, Ron White, Scotty McCreery, Lauren Alaina, Casey James, LeAnn Rimes, Lee Brice, Jana Kramer, Dustin Lynch, Chris Young and champion cowboy Trevor Brazile are all scheduled to appear. Rascal Flatts are also set to perform as the most awarded country music group in the last decade, and while they won the Decade Award for the inaugural American Country Awards, they have since been nominated seven times. This year, the best-selling country vocal group is nominated in four differ-

for seven American Country Awards, while Lady Antebellum and the Zac Brown Band each have six nominations, and Eric Church and Taylor Swift received five nominations.

The Song of the Year category has been added to this year's American Country Awards to better promote both talented musicians and songwriters. The nominees for Song of the Year are "A Woman Like You," by Brice, "Fly Over States" and "Tattoos on This Town," by Aldean, "Red Solo Cup," by Toby Keith, and "Springsteen," by Church.

The list of candidates for each category was determined by five different media companies: BigChampagne, for record sales and media consumption; Great American Country, for video airplay; Mediabase, for radio airplay; Pollstar, for touring information; and the Nashville Songwriters Association International. The choices this year for Artist of the Year are Aldean, Bryan, Lady Antebellum, Swift and the Zac Brown Band.

Host Adkins is no newbie to awards, with his total album sales figuring at more than 10 million -- many of which have gone platinum -- and he's an accomplished television personality, too. Some of his hits include "Just Fishin'", "You're Gonna Miss This" and "All I Ask For Anymore." Adkins is a member of the Grand Ole Opry, but he's also a former Grammy nominee and is currently on tour supporting his 10th studio album, called "Proud

Femme fatale

Dewan-Tatum portrays killer for Lifetime

By Sheila Busteed TV Media

FEMME FATALE: Sarah Pender is one of the most notorious women to be imprisoned for murder in 21st century America. Now, like many killers, she is getting the Hollywood treatment via a new Lifetime telefilm.

Jenna Dewan-Tatum will portray Pender, who was convicted on a double-murder charge for masterminding the killing of her college roommates after a drug deal went bad. She then escaped from prison in 2008 with the help of one of the guards and a former inmate. The movie. titled "She Made Them Do It," will help wrap up 2012 for the cable network when it premieres on Saturday, Dec. 29.

Dewan-Tatum first earned the attention of an nternational audience as the female lead in the 2006 dance flick "Step Up," opposite Channing Tatum, who later became her real-life husband. The wholesome role earned her plenty of fans, but the actress/dancer has since proved that she will not be typecast that way. She had a leading role in the short-lived NBC crime drama "The Playboy Club" and most recently appeared in a three-episode guest arc for FX's anthology series American Horror Story

Still, it will be no easy task for Dewan-Tatum to portray a woman whose crimes were so heinous she was dubbed the female Charles Manson, and whose escape was so ingenious that it took several months and the involvement of the TV show "America's Most Wanted" to finally capture her. During the time she evaded authorities, Pender made it onto the U.S. Marshals' 15 most wanted The telefilm also stars Mackenzie Phillips

("NYPD Blue") as Jamie Long, the former inmate who helped orchestrate the escape.

Collecting by Larry Cox

O: I recently found a fountain pen at a garage sale. I purchased it for a dollar, but think it could be worth much more. It is a Sheaffer "Lifetime Balance," black with what appears to be flakes in its design. I was told that it was originally a graduation present. -- Steve, Rio Rancho, N.M.

A: Your pen was issued in about 1934 and in excellent-to-good condition should be worth in the $250 to $350 range.

O: I have a small collection of Louis L'Amour books, some authorized editions and others published in paperback for the first time. Are they worth anything? -- Bonnie, Granite City, Ill.

A: Louis L'Amour was born in North Dakota in 1908. When he died 80 years later in Los Angeles, 89 of his books were still in print. To find out the value of your books, you should contact some of the excellent usedand rare-book dealers in St. Louis. If you have access to a computer, go to www.abe.com, and type in the titles for current values. Pay close attention to editions and whether the book is autographed by the author.

Q: I recently purchased an original poster from "The Fleet's In" starring Clara Bow. It is in excellent condition and still retains its original bright colors. Any idea of how much this might be worth? -- Steve, Brighton, Colo.

A: This was a film released in 1928. A one sheet from this movie sold for $3,500 about 10 years ago at auction. Despite our sluggish economy, movie memorabilia has continued to grow in popularity and values are still box-office gold with collectors. For a second opinion, contact Conway's Vintage Treasures, P.O. Box 40962, Providence, RI 02940.

Q: We purchased an Atari Super Pong system when it was introduced a number of years ago. It is still in its original box and has four games, instructions and an AC adapter. The model is NO-C-140. How much do you think it is worth? -- Shirley, Sun City West, Ariz.

A: I checked several used electronic shops and monitored the action on eBay, and think your Atari setup would sell in the $50 to $75 range.

Attorney General Warns Consumers About Text Scam

Maryland Attorney General Douglas F. Gansler is warning Maryland consumers not to fall for a widespread text message scam that falsely suggests recipients have won a large gift card to one of several retail stores.

"Scams like these tend to pop up around the holidays when consumers are shopping more and looking for bargains," said Gansler. "But you should never give away personal information in order to redeem a prize. Simply delete any message from someone you do not know, and remember the old saying, If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is."

The text message scam, which has been reported across the country, notifies a recipient that he/she has won retail store and instructs the individual to go to a web site

Our water system recently violated a drinking water standard. Although this is not an emergency, as our customers, you have a right to know what happened, what you should do, and what we are doing to correct this situation. We routinely monitor for the presence of drinking water contaminants. Disinfection byproducts are formed by a chemical reaction of chlorine with the organic material in the water, such as leaves and algae. Testing results show that our system exceeds the standards, or maximum contaminant levels (MCL) for Total Trihalomethanes and Haloacetic Acids. The standard for Total Trihalomethanes is 80 parts per billion (ppb), and Haloacetic

The average level of Disinfection Byproducts over the period April 2011 - March 2012 was:

Total Tribalomethanes Haloacetic Acids 66.5 ppb

What should you do? You do not need to use an alternative (e.g. bottled) water supply. However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor.

What does this mean? This is not an immediate risk. If it had been, you would have been notified immediately. However, some people who drink water containing total trihalomethanes and haloacetic acids in excess of the MCL over many years may have an increased risk of getting cancer.

What happened? What is being done? The State of Mary land. Department of the Environment has made the byproducts limitations more stringent. Oakland worked to lower the levels of total trihalomethanes and haloacetic acids for a couple years in anticipation of the new requirements. Unfortunately, we were not able to bring the levels down to meet the new guidelines. As a result, we completed a study on our water system to determine what changes or improvements are necessary to bring our system into compliance. The engineer completed the design and we are under contract for the construction work necessary to make improvements to our water plants. This should bring our levels into compliance. The construction contract work is nearly barrel, "A. S. Browning". Rifle is about 53" long. Approx: 36 cal. Brass capbox, butt plate, nose cap, trigger guard & cheek piece inlay.

Abel was born 1854, died 1941. He made his rifles at Thayerville MD. He was the grandson of Meshach Browning, Western Maryland's most famous hunter. This rifle may have been built as early as 1870s. Rifle looks similar to the Benson rifles of Preston County, WV. Abel probably apprenticed with one of the Bensons. Rifle is in excellent cond. Wood to metal fit is superb. His skill as a gunsmith must have matched his skill as a fiddle player. A great piece of Garrett County History. First $2,900.00

CHRISTMAS OPEN HOUSE SET - The Grantsville Community Museum will hold an open house this Saturday, Dec. 8, from 1 to 4 p.m. The building is decorated throughout in an old-fashioned Christmas theme. A Christmas tree includes adornments such as dried orange slices, pine cones, and popcorn garland. Beneath the tree and throughout the museum are toys from the past. Representatives from the museum board will provide tours, explaining the many artifacts, including items from the First State Bank (formerly housed in the building), items found along Braddock's Trail, and a photo gallery of the famous photographer from the early 1900s, Leo Beachy. There is also an exhibit of a B-52 bomber crash over Grantsville in 1964. For more information or to set up a group or individual tour, persons may contact board president Sue Beachy at 301-895-5387.

The number of Americans who do not enjoy free stuff from our federal government is exactly zero. No one. Anyone driving on most interstate highways does not have to pay a toll. It is just gone. There is not a single valuable speech therapy session that I had during my horrible long rehabilitation process. None of the speech therapists I worked with understood the involvement of speech, like quickly retrieving difficult words that few people even heard of. My former job demanded that I speak them instantly and blended with fluent streams of words carefully designed to convey complex ideas, to be able to be understood by less prepared audiences. It was not easy, but always fully within my ability. At the

Juvenile Driver Escapes Burning Vehicle In Mishap

A juvenile was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital early Sunday morning after the vehicle she was driving caught fire following an accident. Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to the 12:45 a.m. accident.

Investigation revealed that the 17-year-old female had been operating a 2007 Toyota Camry south on Underwood Road, when she lost control of the vehicle, which traveled off the roadway and down an embankment before hitting some trees and catching fire. The driver was able to escape the burning vehicle and call for assistance.

A family member of the juvenile arrived at the scene a short time later and parked his 1999 Pontiac Sunfire uphill from the burning vehicle. The parking brake failed on the Sunfire, which rolled down the hill and caught fire after coming to rest against the burning Toyota.

Spike woke Clarence when fire broke out in the Pifer family home, located along Rt. 50 near Aurora, W.Va. The fire occurred on Nov. 1, following Superstorm Sandy's arrival on the mountaintop. The Pifers lost electricity and were relying on a fireplace to keep warm. Unbeknownst to them, however, the fireplace was mproperly constructed and ignited the house. When Clarence became disoriented in the smoke-filled home, Spike latched onto a pant leg and boot and dragged his 135-pound friend to the correct escape route. Major Reform Needed...

As Congress and the White House continue to stonewall each other while the nation approaches the end of the year and with it our pending plunge over the "fiscal cliff," it seems that compromise will provide the only solution to our nation's budgetary dilemma. It seems inevitable that certain taxes will be raised, be it for the top 2% (as desired by the Obama administration), and that there will be some significant spending cuts in federal programs (as desired by primarily GOP congressional members).

While tax increases on the wealthy may well be justifiable, there are clearly areas of vast, uncontrolled bleeding of dollars in some government programs that must, sooner (preferably) or later, be brought under control.

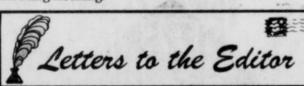

The goal of taking care of people who are for various reasons down and out is truly worthy and should be foremost in the hearts and minds of all elected officials. However, some of those "safety-net" programs have been allowed to go way beyond that initial, worthy intention, expanded to the point that they are now enabling and promoting total dependence and poverty among people who can and should be contributing.

A case in point: Supplemental Security Income. According to an excellent column on this subject by Nicholas Kristof (New York Times), four decades ago the great majority of children who were covered by SSI had severe physical handicaps or mental retardation that created great financial hardship for parents, some of whom could not hold jobs because of having to provide the extra care for their truly disabled children. This equated to about 1% of all poor children. Today, more than half of the disabilities covered are for other, less clear-cut intellectual disabilities, well short of mental retardation (difficulty in learning to read, difficulty with math, etc.). Now 8 percent of all low-income children are receiving SSI coverage, at an annual cost of over $9 billion.

Further, Kristof notes a 2009 study showing that nearly two-thirds of these children make the transition naturally. It's very basic sciat age 18 into SSI for the adult disabled. They may well never hold a job in their adult lives, condemned to a life of government handouts and poverty, the very condition that the program was originally designed restore, because not a whole

The column goes on to state that there are even cases of children being pulled out of their literacy classes ting man-made changes to in rural areas of Kentucky because as children become our earth. To the Editor: On behalf of the Garrett County arts community, thank you for the insight provided in last week's editorial

As you highlighted, the arts play an important role in the quality of life in our communities. Art makes our area more livable and can provide a distinct sense of place. In addition, studies show the benefits of the arts to our brain at any age. A recently aired PBS documentary titled 'Arts and the Mind" reinforced this idea by showcasing successful programs around the country

This letter is in response to a previously published letter that claimed that we have "lost" 5-6 coves at Deep Creek Lake to sedimentation accumulation. There is no scientific evidence to support that claim

I have been studying the bathymetry of the lake for the past three months, using data provided to me by DNR over 600,000 measurements of water depths made all around the lake. They provide insight into the landscape that the lake is based on. We tend to forget the implications of Deep Creek Lake being a man-made water body.

Before the lake was formed, there were valleys and glades (a glade is an open area in a woodland) with small streams, some flowing year-round, some only part of the time. Deep Creek was such a year-round stream. It flowed from the most southern end of the lake to where the dam is now, and eventually ends up in the Youghiogheny River.

Since water flows downhill, the general topography of the land that contains the lake is higher at the southern dam end.

When you flood this "toand because the water level of a lake lies flat (although planning. there are stories that some one once wanted the lake level surveyed to see if it was really flat), that means that the southern end of the lake has to be shallower than the northern end. This is very clear from the bathymetric data. This is also very simple science. The coves follow that same pattern. They are like mini-lakes that connect to all the others. As a result, where the dry lands change elevations gradually, shallow coves in the lake will occur

The other point made was that the lake needs to be restored. There is very little to lot has changed over the years. Yes, there is sedimentation - nature's way of combatstudy will disclose where and how much sediment has been deposited, but not where it came from; however, the re-

The nature of the Arts Council recharge of the lake from runoff and groundwater needs to be modeled. Then decisions about how the water is re-

To the Editor: My thanks to Barbara Briggs for proving my point: League of Women Voters is "disbanded" because of lack of members to "step up to the plate and assume positions of leadership" (12-6-12).

Please check your records during the elections, whereby I was present with the register of wills and two candidates for that office. You'll find my written name, address, etc., to join; your memory is flawed.

In summary, the organization failed to adequately recruit new members so that it could continue its political mission, which brings me back to my point that the organizations here that are mandated to "do politics" are not doing so. The recent elections were devoid of any political presences.

Republican women's club. I checked, and no one in the Northern Garrett Club even knows her, which tells me she never attempted to join, and I doubt that she knows anything about their activities. From my short investigation, I found that her problem was a social situation and did not even involve the Southern Garrett Club. A personality conflict with a member of an organization should not reflect on the entire organization. I attend most meetings of both organizations and support them in various ways. I saw her and her husband at only one club event in 2011. I also checked with Frederick and Allegany counties' clubs, and there is no evidence she ever tried to join them either.

All clubs have a legislative committee, and I can assure her that we collected signatures for all three petitions (regarding same-sex marriage, redistricting, and the "Dream Act"). Churches here even participated in getting signatures for these petitions.

I held a fundraiser for Congressman Bartlett at my home, in which both North Garrett and South Garrett women participated. Senate candidate Dan Bongino and two gubernatorial candidates attended and spoke. Many residents of Garrett County were there

Holiday Travel Expected To Rise By 1.6 Percent

AAA projects 93.3 million Americans will journey 50 miles or more from home during the year-end holidays, an increase of 1.6 percent over the 91.8 million people who traveled last year. This increase brings holiday travel figures to within half a million of the decade high mark seen during the 2006/2007 season. The year-end holiday travel period is defined as Saturday, December 22, to Tuesday, January 1, 2013.

Highlights from AAA 2012/13 Year-End Holiday Travel Forecast include:

·Year-end holiday travelers to total 93.3 million, an increase of 1.6 percent.

·Ninety percent of travelers (84.4 million) to travel by automobile, a 1.3 percent increase, representing 26.7 percent of the total U.S. population

·Holiday air travel expected to increase 4.5 percent to 5.6 million travelers. ·Median spending expected to increase nearly six percent to $759, with transportation costs consuming approximately 29 cents of every travel dollar. ·Average distance traveled to increase by 4.6 percent to

760 miles round-trip, an expected result with an increase in air travelers. *Travel volumes for the year-end holidays are generally very stable, only once in the past decade has there been a change in travel volume

KITZMILLER LIONS HEAR FROM KCSI - The Kitzmiller Lions Club hosted members of the Kitzmiller Charter School Initiative (KCSI) Inc. board of directors at its most recent meeting. In October KCSI submitted an application to the Garrett County Board of Education to create Riverside Academy, a public charter school. In accordance with state law, the Garrett County Board of Education has 120 days to review the application and render a decision. The Lions received an update on the status of the application and insight into Riverside Academy's proposed mission and vision. Dr. Brenda McCartney, KCSI board member, outlined plans for a school "where students and community thrive." Following a brief presentation, the Lions participated in a question and answer session about the proposed school. "The Lions Club motto is 'We serve," said club president Stephanie Schoch. "With Riverside's stress on service for the local community, we envision a variety of means by which we can partner with the proposed school." Pictured from left are Kitzmiller Lions Club officers Dale Lipscomb, Matthew Paugh, and Jennifer Paugh; and Dr. McCartney.

Traffic Deaths For The Nation At 1949 Level

Highway deaths in the United States overall declined 1.9 percent in 2011 to 32,367 compared to 2010, the lowest level in more than six decades since 1949, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA). The 2011 drop builds upon the downward trend in recent years, reflecting a 26 percent decline in the opportunity for interactraffic fatalities overall since tion by Mountain Maryland-

Although Americans drove fewer miles in 2011 than in 2010, the nearly 2 percent drop in roadway deaths outpaced the corresponding 1.2 percent decrease in vecle miles traveled

Maryland's 2011 traffic fatalities declined 2.2 percent from 496 deaths to 485, a reduction of 11 fatalities.

The key factors contributing to the nationwide overall drop include a reduction in deaths in crashes involving drunk drivers and a decline in fatalities of occupants of passenger cars and light trucks (including SUVs, minivans, and pick-ups), according to the NHTSA.

"The decline in the number of overall fatalities is a reflection of the progress that's been made in traffic safety, but one death is still one too many, and the work to reduce motor vehicle crashrelated deaths and injuries is far from finished," said Christine Sarames Delise, a spokeswoman for AAA Mid-Atlantic.

"Motor vehicle crashes remain a public health threat, and we have an opportunity and an obligation to continue investing in making drivers, vehicles, and our transportation network safer," she said. "AAA Mid-Atlantic will continue to partner with safety organizations and law enforcement to promote safe driving practices and to advocate in the legislature for stronger traffic safety

While the number of passenger-car and light-truckoccupant fatalities declined in 2011, traffic deaths increased for large-truck occupants, pedestrians, cyclists, and motorcyclists. PACE Reception, Breakfast Tickets Now Available

with behavioral problems. The Department of Juvenile Services often becomes involved in behavioral issues at public schools. Spokesman Jay Cleary said there are programs in place to minimize students being placed in the department's custody because of school offenses. For example, the Spotlight on Schools program places a department case manager in high schools to address in-school infractions on-site. The goal of the program is to prevent a school-to-prison pipeline like what the Justice Department says is occurring in Meridian by being able to address incidents on a caseby-case basis, Cleary said.

"The goal is to keep the school safe, but the goal is also to keep the young people in school," Cleary said.

Collaboration between the education side and law enforcement side is vital to help prevent the pipeline, Dianis explained.

"A lot of places where we're doing work, the school districts and courts and police are coming together around the realization that ... they've got to stop criminalizing children," she said. "Unfortunately, it seems like the folks in Meridian haven't gotten that memo, yet."

> Only about 12 million out the more than 240 million light-duty vehicles on the roads today are approved by manufacturers to use E15 gasoline, based on a survey conducted by AAA of auto manufacturers. AAA automotive engineering experts also have reviewed the available research and believe that sustained use of E15 in both newer and older vehicles could result in significant problems, such as accelerated engine wear and failure, fuel-system damage, and false

The only vehicles currently approved by automakers to use E15 are flex-fuel models, 2001 model-year and newer and newer GM vehicles, and 2013 model-year Ford vehicles. These approvals extend only to cars, light-duty trucks, and medium-duty passenger vehicles (SUVs). The use of E15 is expressly prohibited in heavy-duty vehicles, boats, motorcycles, power equipment, lawn mowers, and offroad vehicles.

GENERATIONS

As science and medicine discover more means of longevity, we will see increasing members of different generations alive together. The opportunity for older generations to share wisdom with the younger is tremendous; especially now that communication is more sophisticated and instantaneous around the world. With all of today's technology, we can share and be an illustration to all generations that the wisdom of a strong faith in God is foremost. Psalm 100:5 says, "For the Lord is good and his love endures forever; his faithfulness continues through all generations." Remember to worship together as a family this and every week.

The View From Space

Seeing images of Earth from space can induce a variety of powerful feelings, from awe over its beauty to fear over its apparent fragility. Ours is a living, breathing planet and at least so far, we havenÕt found any others where life occurs. Seeing pictures of the Earth from outer space is one thing; actually seeing the Earth from outer space is almost invariably a life-changing experience. Consider what various astronauts have said about their view of our planet from space. James Irwin remarked "That beautiful, warm, living object looked so fragile, so delicate, that if you touched it with a finger it would crumble and fall apart. Seeing this has to change a man, has to make a man appreciate the creation of God and the love of God." Edgar Mitchell observed "Suddenly, from behind the rim of the moon, in long, slow-motion moments of immense majesty, there emerges a sparkling blue and white jewel . . . rising gradually like a small pearl in a thick sea of black mystery. It takes more than a moment to fully realize this is Earth . . . home." Mitchell says elsewhere that "My view of our planet was a glimpse of divinity." Finally, consider what Taylor Wang felt upon seeing Earth from space: "A Chinese tale tells of some men sent to harm a young girl who, upon seeing her beauty, become her protectors rather than her violators. That's how I felt seeing the Earth for the protection. -Christopher Simon

Poking fun at politics: NBC's '1600 Penn' looks at dysfunctional First Family life Unlike her co-star Elfman has

The presidential election may be a memory, but politics are still a hot topic for many Americans.

NBC is taking advantage of the election-year buzz to present a sneak peek at a new comedy about life in the White House. Comedy is the name of the game as an extraordinary yet dysfunctional First Family struggles with average family problems in "1600 Penn," airing Monday, Dec. 17.

Bill Pullman headlines "1600 Penn" as fictional President Dale Gilchrist, who juggles the demands of being a world leader with those of being head of his family. At his side in the White House is his second wife, Emily Nash Gilchrist, played by Jenna Elfman. Eager to win over the kids, the stepmom jumps in to help, whether they're struggling in school or at home. Seymour joins choir for holy night of music

By Sheila Busteed

STAR OF THE WEST: It's been nearly 20 years since Jane Seymour first won America's heart for her wholesome role and stellar performance in CBS's "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman." This Christmas, she'll take viewers back to the Midwest for a special holiday event on PBS.

The British beauty, along with renowned operatic baritone Nathan Gunn, will perform with one of America's longest running and most beloved choirs in "Christmas With the Mormon Tabernacle Choir," which premieres on the public broadcaster on Sunday, Dec. 16. The network will rebroadcast the special twice — on Friday, Dec. 21, and Monday, Dec. 24 — to ensure viewers get their fill of the spectacular musical achievement in honor of the Christmas

The concert, which was filmed in the Conference Center at Temple Square in Salt Lake City, begins with Seymour joining the choir, orchestra and bells for a performance of "Sing Forth This Day." The choir's music director, Mack Wilberg, also honors Seymour with the opportunity to narrate the ensemble's pre-sentation of "Good King Wenceslas" as well as the story of the birth of Jesus Christ from the Book of Viewers can also look forward to Gunn's rousing renditions of "Silent Night," "In dulci jubilo," and 'Twas the Night Before Christmas," plus the magnificent finale featuring the traditional French carol "Angels, From the Realms of Glory."

Formed in 1847, the Mormon Tabernacle Choir consists of 360 volunteer members and is widely considered to be one of the best choirs in the United States. Its annual Christmas concerts, which it performs for free, are so popular that the four-day event typically attracts a total audience at least 80,000

When the All Stars present their finished looks, Mol will be a part of the judging panel. Another guest judge, designer Jenny Packham, will also weigh in on the fashions.

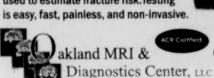

Mol is certainly best known for portraying '50s pinup queen Bettie Page in the aforementioned film, but she's also shared the screen with an impressive list of stars in other projects. Her first big role came in 1996 with "The Funeral," which also starred Christopher Walken, Isabella Rossellini and Benicio Del Toro. She followed that with a small role along-side Al Pacino and Johnny Depp in "Donnie Brasco" (1997). She landed the leading lady role next to Matt Damon and Edward Norton in "Rounders" (1998), and more recently appeared with Russell Crowe and Christian Bale in "3:10 to Yuma" (2007). · It was the third president of the United States, Thomas Jefferson, who made the following observation: "The man who reads nothing at all is better educated than the man who reads nothing but newspapers." · Those who study such things say that a rainbow can't be seen at midday; the optical phenomena are visible only in the morning or in the late afternoon. • In 1982, a radio station in Allentown, Pa., thought its rating could use a bit of a boost, so it came up with a contest: Three contestants, selected at random, would live on top of one of the station's billboards (portable toilets and sleeping bags were provided). The last one to give up would be awarded a mobile home. The problem was, nobody wanted to give up. The three men who climbed to the top of the sign at the end of September were still there come March 1983. In that month, one of the contestants was arrested for dealing drugs, but the remaining two stayed aloft until May. Once the freezing winter was finally over, the radio station decided to declare both of the men winners. • As the end of the year approaches, you might consider an old British tradition of fortune-telling. Light a candle, place it on the floor and jump over it. If the flame does not go out, you're likely to enjoy good luck during the coming year. . · On Dec. 18, 1777, the new United States celebrates its first national day of thanksgiving, commemorating the American victory at the Battle of Saratoga after the surrender of Gen. John Burgoyne and 5,000 British troops that October.

· On Dec. 22, 1808, Beethoven's Fifth Symphony has its world premiere in Vienna. The concert venue was freezing cold and the orchestra played poorly enough to force the nearly deaf composer -also acting as conductor and pianist -- to stop the ensemble partway into one passage and start again from the very beginning.

On Dec. 17, 1903, near Kitty Hawk, N.C., Orville and Wilbur Wright make the first successful flight of a self-propelled aircraft. Orville piloted the gasolinepowered, propeller-driven biplane, which stayed aloft for 12 seconds and covered 120 feet on its inaugural

· On Dec. 19, 1917, four teams of the National Hockey League play the league's first two games. At the time of its inception, the NHL was made up of the Canadiens and the Wanderers (both of Montreal), the Ottawa Senators, the Quebec Bulldogs and the Toronto Arenas.

• On Dec. 23, 1968, the crew and captain of the U.S. intelligence gathering ship Pueblo are released after 11 months imprisonment by the government of North Korea. The ship, and its 83-man crew, was seized by warships on Jan. 23 and charged with intruding into North Korean waters. • On Dec. 21, 1970, rock star Elvis Presley pays a surprise visit to President Richard Nixon at the White House to discuss the war on drugs. Presley apparently was not searched before being granted admission: Upon meeting Nixon, he presented the president with a gift -a World War II-era Colt .45 pistol.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

My great-granddad was from Italy and a great opera lover. When he immigrated to the United States, he brought along about three dozen recordings, including two Zonophone discs by Enrico Caruso. I read in one of your recent columns that Caruso's American Victor Real Seal recordings are fairly common and not worth that much. What about the Zonophones? -- A Reader in Kissimmee, Fla.

Collecting

A: You are correct about the Caruso Red Seals. Most sell in the $5 to $25 range, pending on rarity and Caruso, probably the most legendary classical tenor who ever lived, was born in Naples in 1873. He made his operatic debut in 1894 and after establishing his singing chops in Europe, arrived in the United States in 1902 where he began a long association with the New York Metropolitan Opera. His first major recording in the U.S. was "Vesti La Glubba" from "I Pagliacci," cut in 1904 at the Victor studios. It charted as the best-selling recording in the country that May.

Caruso made only a few Zonophone recordings. Since they are scarce, they also are expensive. Several have sold in the $5,000 to $10,000 range. Someone who might be able to advise you is Richard Gesner, owner of "The Music Connection," one of the premier record shops in New England. You can contact him at 1711 South Willow St., Manchester, NH 03103.

Q: We purchased an Atari Super Pong system when it was introduced a number of years ago. It is still in its original box and has four games, instructions and an AC adapter. The model is NO-C-140. How much do you think it is worth? -- Shirley, Sun

City West, Ariz. A: I checked several used electronic shops and monitored the action on eBay, and think your Atari setup would sell in the $50 to $75 range.

Q: I have a "bobbing head" doll that I would like to know more about. It was made by Kanmar in Japan and is of a black boy attached to an orange, which is a bank. -- Marilyn, Stigler, Okla.

A: I could not find your doll referenced in "Bobbing Head Dolls 1960-2000" by Tim Hunterm which spotlights more than 700 dolls with prices.

SCIENTIFIC CHRISTMAS GIFTS by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. What are some good toys that teach children about science? I have some grandkids who already have all kinds of electronic stuff.

head for the cheap stuff - which is usually hidden in a back corner, not out on the center aisles like the expensive

Probably the most under-rated toy in the world is a yo-yo. They cost $3. Children can learn to do lots of tricks with them, but sooner or later the basic question recurs: "Why does it come back up?" You don't have to be able to spell the words counter-intuitively to realize that something unusual nuts, but they'll thank you for it someday. is going on. A toy that causes a child to ask the question momentum" - a phrase seldom heard before an AP physics class in high school.) The "Slinky" is fascinating to watch as it walks down stairs at a nice steady pace, not falling or rolling down like other toys. Again, it costs $3. The important question it by developing your deductive reasoning powers. There is puts into a child's mind is "Why?" Why does it act in such a controlled way? Asking questions is the beginning of science. (It's because of the exchange of energy [provided by required are basically very mathematical, the subject of gravity] into spring motion.) People have written master's some advanced treatises in geometry.

There's another $3 gizmo called "Zeebeez." It's slightly smaller than a yo-yo, and it's entertaining because it acts counter-intuitively. A very short stem is connected to a rubber disk/dish, so the whole thing looks like a miniature biology. An inquisitive child can learn a lot making accurate bathroom plunger. You turn the rubber part inside out, and that effort has the effect of storing energy in the springiness of the rubber. Then you drop it onto a hard floor, perhaps giving it a spin as you let go. It hits the floor and bounces surgery on the real thing.

A harmonica also costs $3. At first it just makes noise, but soon the child notices that the sound is different when you blow into the tubes at the wide end or the narrow end, or if you cover them with your fingers. Why should that be so? This isn't just a gee-whiz toy; it prompts asking a question. Finding the answer might take years of studying music, but the questioning starts with a $3

A bubble wand uses soapy water and makes gigantic A. When you go into the toy department of a store, bubbles, bigger than a child's head. The obvious question is "How can a bubble that big hold together and drift around the room?" The adults probably won't know why either, but wanting to know is how science starts.

By the way, if you have the good fortune to find in the same household a small child with a big sister or brother studying science in college, ask the college student to explain how those simple, entertaining toys work. It'll drive 'em

But the simplest things cost very little, and start the process of scientific questioning: a prism makes rainbows; a magnet pulls things in an unseen way, plus it picks up iron or steel, but not wood, glass, or aluminum; a kaleidoscope makes everchanging symmetric patterns. The question "Why?" jumps right out. That's science.

Maryland Student Vocabulary Scores Among The Best

Vocabulary scores by Maryland students are on the rise at both the fourth grade and eighth grade levels, scoring well past the national averages, according to data being released this week by the National Assessment of Educational Programs

NAEP, a federal program known as the Nation's Report Card, found that Maryland grade 4 vocabulary scores increased from 223 to 226 between 2009 and 2011, while grade 8 scores jumped from 266 to 269. The national average for grade 4 was 217. while the national average for grade 8 was 263, and neither of those scores improved between 2009 and 2011.

Fourth graders in Maryland ranked fourth in the nation for vocabulary, while eighth graders tied for 14th. The rate of score improvement for both classes was

DONATIONS MADE TO TROOPS - Taylor-Made Deep Creek Vacations employees recently selected currently deployed U.S. soldiers to receive donations for the business's annual holiday charity drive. Raising over $700 in goods, care packages were sent to three separate platoons stationed overseas. Among soldiers listed on www.anysoldier.com, Taylor-Made employees selected three soldiers' requests. U.S. Air Force soldier David Gamba, who is stationed in the Middle East, requested items to cook other than the limited selection that is provided by the mess hall. Michelle Svec, stationed in Afghanistan, requested basic personal necessities, as her platoon is currently living in mud huts with no store nearby, U.S. Army soldier Jeremy Rand is stationed in Afghanistan as well, and he requested that snacks be sent to his current home, a wooden building about one mile from the mess hall. "We are so appreciative of the service men and women that risk their lives every day for our country," said Taylor-Made representative Angle Landers. "It is good to be able to show them that we care and can make their lives just a bit easier." Additional items requested among the three platoons were personal hygiene items (chapstick, lotions, body wash/wipes), entertainment (word searches, sudoku puzzles, books, magazines), and snacks (granola bars, energy bars, peanuts and trail mix). Mail in the form of letters, cards, and short notes was also requested. From left are employees Lisa Hostetler and Landers.

Community Action Awarded $81K For Savings Program

The Garrett County Community Action Committee was recently awarded an $81,000 Assets for Independence grant by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) Administration for Children and Families. The grant funds, which are leveraged with local funds, provide matched savings-for-savings accounts opened by low-income individuals or families.

"These savings accounts are specifically designated for the purpose of purchasing assets that will increase in value over time," said a spokesperson. "The three purposes currently permitted for the matched savings program are the purchase of a home, pursuing higher education, and starting up a small business."

The $81,000 award will be combined with contributions received from First United Bank & Trust and Susquehanna Bank. Applicants for matched savings accounts, or IDAs (individual developthe total family income guidelines set forth by HHS and must be saving for an eligible purpose.

POS Monies To Effort In Oakland

A recreational project in Oakland will soon receive funding for necessary upgrades and additions through Program Open Space. Governor Martin O'Malley and the Board of Public Works approved the projects at yesterday's meeting in Annapolis.

Oakland will receive $3,000 to install backboards on the basketball hoops at the former National Guard armory along Eighth Street. A portion of previously approved Program Open Space grants will also be used to improve the facility. These enhancements include upgrading parts of the flooring on the existing basketball court, replacing a portion of the gym floor, restriping and refinishing the entire gymnasium floor, and replacing the gym lights with a recreational lighting system.

"Program Open Space funded recreational projects provide convenient places where our children can enjoy a favorite sport or explore their natural world, while getting exercise and spending quality time with friends and family," said Governor

O'Malley. The Board of Public Works has approved fund-ing for 1,152 recreational projects, including community parks and playgrounds, totaling more than $313 million through local-side Program Open Space since 2007. Most Maryland residents live within 15 minutes of an open space or recreational area funded by Program Open

SANTA FE GRILLE DONATES TO CHRISTMAS PROJECT - The staff of the Santa Fe Grille in McHenry recently presented their annual donation to the Oakland Rotary Christmas Events Club's Christmas Project. In addition to a check, more than 100 toys and other gifts collected by the staff and their patrons were donated. "Often, staff would purchase many of the gifts out of their own pockets, doing the shopping on off time, selecting toys for children who have been identified," said a Rotary spokesperson, who noted the restaurant's contribution tripled this year, compared to other years. "The reason for such outpouring of generosity by staff and patrons alike lies in the belief that by giving to the community one can only imagine children's faces lighting up when they receive their presents at Christmas time." Staff members have also helped Relay for Life, the Dove Center, Hospice, the Wounded Warrior Project, PAWS, and Cindy's Fund. Those instrumental in the Christmas project include Melissa Nazelrod, Rachel Bruch, Kiely Davis, Stephanie Spano, Sarah Griffin, Cathey Macak, Patti Balamenti, Maria Perfetti, Kim Leventic, Brittany Stein, and Terri Holdtscheider. Irresponsible Media...

The massacre in Newtown, Conn., last Friday has jolted the general public of the United States as profoundly as did the 9/11 attacks did over a decade ago, but in some ways even more deeply. The slaughter of young, innocent, defenseless children cuts to our very soul in a way that almost no other tragedy can. One hardly knows where to begin in response to the tragedy, as there are a number of areas that must be examined. How to improve security in our schools, how to more effectively reach and treat the mentally tormented in our society before they commit such horrendous acts, what must be done in order to dramatically reduce the numbers and types of weaponry available to the public, and what role is exposure to so much violence playing in the mind-set of our citizenry, particularly our young people?

There are numerous editorials to be found in these topics, but the one selected for today centers on the utter irresponsibility of the media, particularly that of television and Internet, as the tragedy unfolded last Friday. The feeding frenzy began, as reporters from every major television network tried to see who could get to Newtown first, and soon thereafter began broadcasting information that was woefully inaccurate. In the quest to be first, in what has become a game of media one-upmanship, wrong information about the incident was repeatedly circulated literally around the world. The primary objective of reporting accurate information became secondary to seeing who could beat whom in this game. It was disgraceful, particularly to those of us who are in the same business.

There is a second, considerably more serious practice by major media that must change as our nation attempts to prevent such heinous acts from being repeated - the in-depth, ad nauseum, personal coverage of the killer or killers. In nearly every case, the villains in these events are angry, damaged individuals whose sense of self-esteem is well below zero. They feel invisible, and thus typically crave attention. It makes no difference whether the attention is positive or negative. Every school teacher sees this in some children on practically a daily basis. It does not take a doctorate in psychology to grasp this concept. Yet, so many of those in the media - generally a relatively intelligent lot - don't seem to get it; or don't care.

Yes, the public in this country "has a right to know." But only go to a certain extent. Mental health experts causes 46,000 premature which I pray. And before you label me, I am of the Chrisalso truly need to know what makes these people tick in order to more effectively treat them. But we do not need to see this young man's photograph plastered all over every network, evey day, for weeks or months. This is precisely the kind of recognition these people so desperately desire, and our media make sure they get it. Undoubtedly there are many other damaged people out there, some of whom with the notion, "So, you think what this guy did was bad. Just you wait..." Frankly, we really don't even need to hear his name, at least not after an initial identification.

As agency leaders, elected officials, police and emergency personnel, school boards and staffs, and various other individuals get together over the coming months to address this terrible event and to develop an action plan, it would be great if representatives from all of the major networks did likewise. They need to set their attitude of competitiveness completely aside, for the safety of our citizens. They need to collectively take a hard look at how they cover such tragedies, and how that coverage should be changed in the effort to help prevent them.

by Jill Pertler In previous columns, I defined parenthood as an infinite act of optimism. You enter the job with open arms and an open heart, trusting the child you've been entrusted with will learn, grow, and love under your humble tutelage. Loving one child is optimistic - two, doubly so. Imagine taking responsibility for 20, or maybe 25.

I define that as optimism on steroids.

As a parent, you get to keep the same kids season after ute and a half, they start to grow on you and you wouldn't ery Thursday in Oakland, at the foldream of swapping them out for another set. In fact, the thought is painful; your heart can't even contemplate the

Now, imagine swapping out your 20 for a new group each year. Just about the time you get to know the ones in your care, they up and move on to bigger and better things, leaving you to start all over with a couple dozen little newbie strangers.

I call that crazy optimism on steroids. Or, to use another term: the work of a teacher.

Teaching is near the top of the list of the most noble of professions, yet often one we take for granted. The majority of us send our children off each morning with homework in their backpacks and Froot Loops on their breaths and don't give it a second thought. We rest assured our kids will learn the multiplication facts, their spelling list for the week, and the difference between a liquid and a solid. They'll eat lunch in the cafeteria, sing in the music room, and play outside during recess. Through it all, they will be safe, because they are with their teacher.

Most teachers go into the profession because they love kids and want to educate them. Now, however, we ask a whole lot more. We expect them to teach to state and federal standards, when kids in their classroom may come to school hungry, or without a good night's sleep. We expect them to utilize technology and the latest in teaching techniques, when what some of their students need most is a hug. They are required to pacify demanding helicopter parents and make up for the absence of those too busy to come to school conferences. On top of everything else, we ask them to keep our kids safe - from things too evil to mention in the classroom.

Most teachers chose the profession knowing they'd need to keep kids safe. Safe from skinned knees during recess and sunburned shoulders during the spring field trip. They expected to lead discussions about Harriet Tubman and Christopher Columbus, not where to hide if a bad stranger tian tribe, and am happy to attempt daily to comprehend enters the school. They expected to be familiar with the pull of a child's arms around their neck, not the weight of a lanyard with keys equipping them for lockdown at a

MEMOIRS OF AN IMAGINARY FRIEND by Matthew Dicks C. 2012, St. Martin's Press, $24.99; 314 Pages

Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer You had no one to blame but yourself. You forgot, you ignored, you missed out. You broke a promise, maybe a spirit, feelings were hurt, and apology is long overdue. There is no defense because you admit it: It's your fault.

Guilty as charged, and now's the time when you wish you were a kid again. At least you'd have someone to point a finger at, but in the book Memoirs of an Imaginary Friend by Matthew Dicks, a pretend friend did more than just take Budo doesn't remember when he was born. One day, when Max Delaney was 4, he started imagining Budo and just like that, Budo "popped into existence," knowing only what Max knew.

Still, Budo knows he's lucky. Max imagined him with arms, legs, and a face, and he can go places without Max, which is handy for eavesdropping. He's also been around for almost five years, which is a lot longer than most imaginary friends. He's around because Max needs him and vice versa: As long as Max believes, Budo survives.

Nobody really knows what's wrong with Max, although some say he has Asperger's. He hates to be touched, though he likes people from far away. Budo likes Max's family and most of Max's teachers, but he doesn't like Mrs. Patterson. She's not really all that nice and she makes Max keep secrets from Budo.

As the school year progresses, Budo explores the neighborhood while Max is asleep, he meets other imaginary friends, and he protects Max from a boy who's bullying him at school. The bully, though, isn't Budo's biggest worry; Budo's more worried about Mrs. Patterson because she likes to take Max out in the parking lot to sit in her car. They don't go anywhere. They just sit.

But one day, they don't just sit, and Budo's sure that Max knew about that. Max might even admit to knowing, but Budo can't ask because he can't find Max, which means the grown-ups can't either.

Max is gone, but Budo knows Max is still alive because he's still alive, too. How long that will last is anyone's Flat-out, hands-down, no doubt, Memoirs of an Imaginary Friend is a wonderful, wonderful novel.

Some 65 percent of adults had an imaginary friend once upon a time, and author Dicks will make you remember the one you loved before you grew up. The difference is that here, Dicks allows the innocence of childhood to butt against the harshness of delusion and the emergence of reality. His own imagination soars in creating Budo; we peek into a world we'd never usually see, and it's incredibly captivating. Then Dicks chills us to the core just before he breaks our hearts.

This is one of those novels that takes you by the hand on page one and doesn't let go. It's sweet and sad, and I think you'll love it, so grab Memoirs of an Imaginary Friend and have a seat. Miss it, and you have nobody to blame

Though ASCI realized a small income in 2012, it still has debt. Its board established a $300,000 interest-free line of credit with the county in June 2009. Through a line graph, Weeks explained ASCI's cycle of borrowing (in $50,000 to $100,000 increments) and repayment (in $50,000 or less increments) over a 31/2-year period.

"You can see a pattern; it's always in April," Weeks said about the borrowing. "Right before they started their season, they ran out of money."

By the end of this year, ASCI's debt to the county will be nearly $700,000, which includes the original $600,000. Weeks noted that without recent positive cash flows, ASCI's debt would have been closer to $850,000.

That proves the point that we've been able to stabilize the operations and see a positive cash flow," Weeks said. He noted that by June 30,

Adria Graham Awarded ECAC Division III Player Of The Year

Adria Graham, a former Northern High School standout, and current Frostburg State University (FSU) women's soccer star, continues to rack up postseason awards. Not long after Graham led the Bobcats to a 14-4-2 record, FSU's first CAC Championship, and advanced to the 2012 NCAA Division III Championship Tournament, the honors came pouring in.

Graham was awarded the Capital Athletic Conference (CAC) Player of the Year, All-CAC First Team, and Capital One Academic All-American (perfect 4.0 GPA) just days after the successful season came to an end.

In the past few weeks, Graham has added to the trophy case by earning several other awards. She was awarded NSCAA All-Region and All-American honors, named to the ECAC All-Star team, and received the highest of honors by being named the 2012 ECAC Division III South Women's Soccer Co-Offensive Player of the Year (shared with Hannah Kronick of Johns Hopkins).

SAVE ON HOLIDAY SPENDING IN JANUARY AND FEBRUARY

by Lynn Little, Extension Educator, Family and Consumer Sciences University of Maryland

Extension If you usually find yourself facing a stack of bills from Extension (UME) provides holiday shopping, resolve this educational programs and year to not let your spending problem-solving assistance get out of control. The holiday season is a time to share, resources, nutrition, finance, enjoy family and friends, and to give more of ourselves. By planning ahead, you can be creative and thoughtful, yet 6960 or visit us online at stay within your budget. Plan your holiday budget your finances. Have you saved Set For Sunday istically afford. Take a look at for holiday expenses? Or, will the gifts need to be purchased from regular monthly disposable income? Do you plan to pay cash? Or use credit?

Make a list of the friends, family members, and others you would like to remember with a gift. Place a dollar amount by the name of each person on your gift list. Be certain you also allow for other holiday expenses, such as decorating, entertaining, to attend. gift-wrapping, and postage.

Overspending is easy. Adyertising increases during the holiday season and stores offer expanded inventories. Since so often holiday shopping is impulsive, be sure you shop with your list and consider paying in cash: If time permits, separate "shopping" trips from "spending" trips. Use shopping trips to get ideas, make a list of alternatives, check prices, and comparison shop.

If you plan to do your holiday shopping with a credit card, consider using only one credit card and keeping a running tally of your expenditures. Many people carry multiple credit cards, so it's easy to lose track of holiday credit card purchases. Avoid buy-now/pay-later offers, designed to encourage you to spend money you don't have. These plans usually charge high interest from the date of purchase if you can't pay the bill in full by the end of the no-interest period, or if you are just one day late with a payment.

Online shopping may help your holiday season be less stressful. Make sure you understand refund policies, and don't forget to include shipping charges in your budget.

Creative ways to give during the holidays can save you money. Try giving the gift of service. Offer to babysit, run errands, shovel snow, iron, tutor, or do housekeeping.

Teach your children the value of giving. Have them donate used toys and clothing to charity. You may also be able to take a tax deduction.

Start now to control spending for the holidays. With advance planning, your chances of not overspending improves •greatly, and you may be better able to control the temptation to spend too much as an ex-*pression of love.

Spending more than you planned can add stress to the holiday season and after. Try to remember that thoughtfulhess can be far more imporstant than price.

Should You Prepare for "Fiscal Cliff"?

control. This may be especially true today, when the entire country appears to be on edge about the approaching "fiscal cliff." What can you do in the face of such a dire prediction?

First of all, you'll need to understand what initially led the Federal Reserve to issue the fiscal cliff warning. Here's the story: Some $1.2 trillion in spending cuts are scheduled to begin in 2013, while, simultaneously, the Bush-era tax cuts — including the reduction in capital gains and dividend taxes - are set to expire. This combination of spending cuts . Take advantage of tax deferred vehicles. possible recession — and maybe something much worse, at least in the eyes of the Fed.

Still, there's no need for panic. Despite its plan. political infighting, Congress is likely to reduce the "cliff" to a smaller bump. But as an investor, you may need to be prepared for two significant events: market volatility, at least in the short term, and higher taxes, probably for the foreseeable future.

To combat market volatility, you may want to take these steps.

* Rebalance. You may need to rebalance your portfolio to ensure it still reflects your target mix of investments, based on your long-term goals and your risk tolerance.

· Diversify. A broadly diversified portfolio

As an investor, you can sometimes feel . Upgrade investment quality. Generally you're at the mercy of forces beyond your speaking, higher quality investments are better positioned to withstand the tempests of volatile financial markets. Consequently, when investing in stocks, look for companies with solid track records, strong management and competitive products. And when purchasing bonds, seek those that earn the highest grades from the independent rating agencies.

> Now, let's turn to taxes. Even if taxes on income, capital gains and dividends do rise, they will still, in all likelihood, be much lower than they've been at various points in the past. Nonetheless, you may want to consider a variety of steps, including the following:

Candles of Christmas

Upon the mantle, beautiful candles glow as they burn through special occasions throughout the holidays... reminders of those times when family and friends gather to celebrate the birth of Christ. Though the holidays will end, let us carry a candle for the Child in each of our hearts throughout the coming year. May the warmth of His spirit mold each of us into the person we are meant to be and may we share God's joy with everyone we meet. Give thanks to God for His greatest gift, and worship Him each week.

The Door Is Open

How many of us live in prisons of our own making? If you feel constrained by the circumstances of your life and yet those circumstances are largely your own creations, then you have indeed built yourself a prison. Henry David Thoreau writes about those who have "forged their own golden or silver fetters," accumulating wealth and property to the point where they are literally enslaved to it. He reminds us that "A man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can afford to let alone." And a man is free in the same proportion. The ultimate freedom is to have the liberty of mind and spirit to do as one would choose, free of duress or external control. Most adults live life free of external control, and yet we feel constrained by the circumstances of our lives. We must toil and work like slaves because we have allowed materialism to become our master. We are slaves to our appetites and desires because we have allowed hedonism to become our master. And we are imprisoned by our own minds because we fail to see that there are other ways to think and live. The Sufi poet Rumi asks "Why do you stay in prison when the door is so wide open?" The answer can only be that it is a prison of our own choosing.

-Christopher Simon

IT IS FOR FREEDOM THAT CHRIST HAS SET US FREE. STAND FIRM, THEN, AND DO NOT LET YOURSELVES BE BURDENED AGAIN BY A YOKE OF SLAVERY.

Have a Seuss holiday: The Grinch and Horton entertain and delight this Christmas

By Kyla Brewer

When Santa's come and gone, and the holiday feast is nothing but a mountain of leftovers, it's time to relax.

From coast to coast, millions will be turning on the television in search of some Christmas Day entertainment, and two major networks are banking on the magic of Dr. Seuss to keep TV audiences amused.

Viewers young and old will want to tune in for the animated classic "Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas," airing Christmas Day on ABC. Grinch fans can look forward to an entire evening of Who-tastic fun as the network follows it up with the 2000 live-action adaptation starring Jim Carrey. At the same time, NBC presents Carrey's voice talents in the 2008 animated film "Horton Hears a Who," based on another beloved Seuss story.

As some families wade through a room full of wrapping and bows (not to mention toys!), the story of the Grinch is as valid today as it was when Theodor Seuss Geisel (a.k.a. Dr. Seuss) came out with the tale in 1957. Disgusted with the holiday traditions of good-natured Whos down in Whoville, the curmudgeonly Grinch sets out to take Christmas from them. He is convinced that if he steals all of their material belongings -- "Their presents! The Ribbons! The wrappings!" -- he'll stop Christmas from coming. Luckily, the Whos are wise to the true meaning of Christmas and, in the end, teach the Grinch a lesson. An enlightened Grinch realizes the error of his dastardly ways, reminding all of us that Christmas "doesn't

True to the original book, the 1966 cartoon version has become a staple of Christmastime programming. The short was directed by animation legend Chuck Jones with the approval of Seuss himself, who worked with Jones on military training cartoons during the Second World War. It debuted on Dec. 18, 1966, on CBS, where it aired every year until 1987. Turner Broadcasting later acquired the rights to the film, and the animated "Grinch" has appeared on a variety of networks and channels

Boris Karloff served as the narrator and also provided the voice of the green meanie in what would end up being one of his final roles. "The Grinch" elicited mixed reviews from critics when it first premiered, but has topped numerous Top 10 lists of holiday specials since. Its popularity speaks for itself, being one of the must-see specials of the holiday season.

The cartoon will serve as a great lead-in for director Ron Howard's live-action adaptation starring Jim Carrey. Released in 2000, the feature-length film drew fire from critics and Seuss fans for its convoluted story. Although the basic plot follows that of the book and much-loved animated special, a backstory and subplots were added to stretch the Grinch adventure to feature length.

Carrey's Grinch is still a Whoand-Christmas hater, but Howard's film reveals that the young Grinch was taunted by his Who classmates as a child. Cindy Lou Who (Taylor Momsen) is much more than two (her age in the book/cartoon) at eight years old. It is her idea to invite the Grinch to be a part of the annual holiday festivi-

'Whobilation." He initially rejects her invitation but later changes his mind and accepts, and the result is Christmas chaos.

Taking on such a classic story is a daunting task, but Howard and Carrey weathered the criticisms well. Despite naysavers and Seuss purists who disliked the film and weren't afraid to talk about it, "Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas" spent four weeks at the No. 1 spot at the box office and is one of the highest-grossing holiday films of all time. It even earned an Oscar for Rick Baker

Upcoming 'CSI' tactics are tried and true

FAMILIAR GROUND: CBS's "CSI" franchise is proving that even after 13 years, it can still keep things fresh with new guest stars and special cross-

The original series, "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," is starting the new year by hitting the courts with some big names from the tennis world. An upcoming January episode will feature legendary tennis champion Chris Evert, Olympic gold medalist Lindsay Davenport and commentator Justin Rackets will be wielded, evidence collected, clues detected and a mystery uncovered when the CSI team investigates the death of a professional female tennis player. The aforementioned sports personalities will appear as themselves in the special episode. The following month, series star Ted Danson will team up with his Big Apple counterpart when the parent series and its popular spinoff, "CSI: NY," join forces for a two-part crossover that will certainly be must-see TV for fans. For the special event, Det. Mac Taylor (played by Gary Sinise) journeys to Las Vegas to visit his girlfriend, Christine, only to discover she's been kid-napped. He joins the local CSI team in the hunt to find her in "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," airing Wednesday, Feb. 6. The story concludes two days later in an episode of "CSI: NY" as Danson's character, D.B. Russell, accompanies Taylor back to New York to continue the search. Even with one of the suspects arrested, Taylor cracks and breaks protocol to find Christine before it's

TIMELESS SUBJECT: It's been nearly 400 years since the literary world suffered its greatest traged, the death of William Shakespeare. IDITAROD RACER VISITS LOCAL SCHOOL -Accident Elementary fifth grade classes welcomed Iditarod "musher" Rodney Whaley and his well-known lead dog Spidey to their school last Wednesday. Whaley gave a two-hour presentation - which included a slide show and songs - about the annual Alaskan Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race. A resident of Tennessee, Whaley came to Deep Creek Lake with five sleddogs to mush and train teams for a week at Husky Power Dogsledding. In return for the business's hospitality, Whaley brought his Iditarod sleds, parkas, and lots of stories to the school. The students learned how Whaley fell in love with dogsledding during fourth grade when he lived in Alaska and how he always wanted to go back to live his dream of mushing down Fourth Avenue in Anchorage during the Iditarod. He told the students to hold on to their dreams and work hard to make them come true, as he did in 2008 when he competed in the Iditarod. After the presentation, the students joined Husky Power's Linda Herdering and Kara Lewandowski (an apprentice) outside to stand on sleds and pet Spidey, pictured above with Whaley and Lewandowski. Spidey was the lead dog in last year's official Iditarod poster, as seen on the screen in the photo. Photo courtesy of Husky Power Dogsledding.

MDA recommends that residents be home when wood is delivered and to measure the stack immediately to make sure they receive the correct quantity. If buyers luctant to provide complete cannot be home, they should measure the stack as soon as possible. Consumers who think they have received less than a cord should first try to resolve the matter with the seller. If that doesn't work, they should telephone the Weights and Measures office in Annapolis at 1-800-492-

MDA also reminds residents that it is illegal to move ash wood materials and all hardwood firewood from the 14 counties west of the Chesapeake Bay and Susquehanna River to the Eastern Shore. This restriction is an attempt to prevent the emerald ash borer (EAB), an invasive species that kills ash trees, from invading the Eastern Shore. The EAB arrived in Maryland on infested nursery stock, and MDA has confirmed the presence of EAB in nine of the 14 counties on the western shore. It has not yet been detected on the Eastern Shore. The EAB has destroyed hundreds of ash trees across the state and thousands across the country. USDA has estimated losses caused by the EAB could exceed $227.5 million in the Baltimore area alone.

Ash is one of the most popular trees used in landscaping in Maryland. Officials urge county residents and sellers of firewood not to transport firewood, but rather to "burn it where you buy it." Ash wood, however, can be transported within the 14-county quarantine area.

SCIENTIFIC THEORIES

by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. Isn't this Mayan calendar hysteria overblown? I don't think the world will end tomorrow.

of words. But as long as the TV reporters are devoted to boosting their ratings, scrounging around for a new, more flamboyant headline, this kind of stuff will continue.

Instead of dwelling on the Mayans, this might be a good time to think back to the beginning of the universe, and how our scientific theories about it have developed during Astronomy and cosmology go clear back to Aristotle, but in 1912, we had no idea of separate galaxies. There were some fuzzy objects out there, but telescopes weren't good enough to resolve what they actually were.

Then along came Einstein's General Theory of Relativity, which was a comprehensive theory uniting space and time and gravity. Einstein's theory was totally different from what people had previously assumed. But Einstein's previous theoretical accomplishments (four important new theories in 1905) assured that many scientists at least paid attention. By 1918, a prediction of Einstein's theory was verified via an experiment conducted during a solar eclipse, and that greatly enhanced the credibility of General Relativity.

Soon many more scientists got interested, because it was possible to associate the huge amount of observed astronomical data with a theory that made sense of it all. The measurable difference in light arriving from some very distant stars (the "red shift") provided convincing evidence that the universe was expanding - and that begged for an Einstein's equations of General Relativity involved tensor calculus, which was unfamiliar to most scientists at the time; but a few set out to solve those equations for special conditions of the universe. Einstein himself believed that the universe was in a "steady state," hardly changing at all.

Around 1922, a Russian named Alexander Friedmann worked out a solution for a universe expanding from a singular starting point; unfortunately, he died soon thereafter and his work wasn't noticed. Working independently, Georges LeMaitre, a Belgian Catholic priest, solved Einstein's equations for a universe starting at time t = 0 and expanding from a singular point to its present size. LeMaitre turned that in as his doctoral thesis to both Harvard and MIT in 1925, and that was quickly noticed in the western scientific world.

When Einstein heard of LeMaitre's work, he scoffed at it, and that disdain put LeMaitre into an uphill struggle. The impression of a steady unchanging universe "out there" was very strong in those days, and the thought of everything starting off at a single point was incomprehensible to most physicists. Other critics sneeringly invented the phrase "big bang" to pile on the ridicule.

It's an interesting footnote to history that foolish people dismissed Einstein at first, using the derisive term "Jewish physics." But Einstein became so well respected that in 1939 he signed a letter to President Roosevelt pointing out the possibility of an atomic bomb, and soon the United States began the Manhattan Project to build it. Fortunately for us, the Nazis believed their own anti-Semitic propabuild an atomic bomb

The disdain for LeMaitre didn't last long. Better tele- ence and religion. scopes were built, and other galaxies beyond our own Milky permitted a calculation of how fast the universe was ex- column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com. panding, and it was all consistent with LeMaitre's theory. Einstein himself eventually came to agree with LeMaitre - for the simple and honorable scientific reason that LeMaitre's theoretical solution accounted for the data. Einstein's General Relativity, meanwhile, became fully accepted throughout the scientific world.

With his scientific respectability secure, LeMaitre moved A. "Overblown" and "hysteria" are very good choices in higher circles within the Catholic church, and became a key scientific advisor to Pope Pius XII. In 1950, a most interesting backstage drama took place, which shows what real scientists think about even the best scientific theories.

Pope Pius XII saw that the big bang theory coincided very nicely with the narrative in chapter one of the Book of Genesis, and was going to declare it to be true, a doctrine of faith. Obviously that would have been a huge accolade for LeMaitre, a permanent vindication of his theory. Instead of rejoicing at this, LeMaitre himself talked the pope out of it. LeMaitre explained that NO theory in physics, however elegant or reliable, is truly final. Every theory can always be revised; every theory can be contradicted (and thereby destroyed) by a single experiment. LeMaitre knew his history well: Only a century earlier, "the ether" seemed a sure thing.

In 1963, new evidence from radio astronomy gave further evidence that indeed the universe originated in a sudden explosion, and the competing "steady state" theory was abandoned. The big bang became the only game in town. However, with the passage of yet another half-century, recent observations have indicated that some correction may be necessary to Einstein's theory: There may well be some additional force (customarily termed "dark energy") that causes the expansion of the universe to accelerate. In the years ahead, will General Relativity and the big bang be corrected? Stay tuned. Fr. Georges LeMaitre had an enduring confidence that both science and religion are complementary pathways to knowledge, but scientific theories can stand or fall on their own, and don't need religion to referee. Albert Einstein's famous quotes include this: "Science without religion is lame; religion without science is blind." More recently (1987), Pope John Paul II stated their complementary relationship very cogently: "Science can purify religion from error and superstition. Religion can purify science from idolatry and false absolutes." Thinking that a scientific theory is "final" ganda, were dismissive of Einstein, and didn't sufficiently would be a false absolute. It is enormously to the credit of finance an effort comparable to the Manhattan Project to LeMaitre that he dismissed fame for himself, and adhered to his understanding of the proper relationship between sci-

NATURE OFFERS A CHRISTMAS GIFT - Generally one does not expect to see wild animals, especially in the middle of the afternoon. But on Christmas Day, this elegant barred owl was for some reason perched quite visibly along Rt. 50 near Aurora, on Cheat Mountain. Staff member Fabian Green was surprised to see the bird so close to the road, so he stopped to get this picture.

Barred owls are usually hidden in groves of trees, resting quietly throughout the day. They emerge at night to feed on rodents, frogs, and crayfish. However, they do occasionally come out in the daytime, rarely, as this one did, and Green was happy to accept this gift, and to take his picture, too.

"Mr. Koch will bring to Garrett County Government and the Department of Economic Development 22 years in housing finance executive management," the commissioners said in a press release. YET ANOTHER EFFECT OF SUPERSTORM SANDY was the downing of thousands of limbs and trees across recreational trails in local state parks. But thanks to numerous crews armed with chain saws, including the Patapsco and New Germany Maryland Conservation Corps and Garrett County Snow Drifters, many trails have been cleared. All Mt. Aetna ski and Deep Creek trails are open, and New Germany State Park trails are ready for ski season. In addition, all primary Potomac-Garrett State Forest access roads are open to traffic. All 6.7 miles of the forest's ski trails (those linked to the Herrington Manor State Park's trails) have been cleared to accommodate cross-country skiing. The "51/2 mile Trail" that connects Herrington Manor State Park and Swallow Falls State Park through the Garrett State Forest is opened to hiking. "The trail bed, however, is still littered with branches and may not be suitable for skiing until there is a very significant snow pack," noted Theresa MacLennan, Garrett Trails executive director. The company is the corporate owner of the Luke paper mill, which employs about 870 people.

In conjunction with the plan, NewPage closed on its exit financing, consisting of a $500 million term loan facility led by Goldman Sachs Lending Partners LLC and a $350 million revolving credit facility led by J.P. Morgan Securities LLC.

"This is an exciting day for all of us at NewPage," said George F. Martin, president and chief executive officer. "We have successfully completed our restructuring, and we have emerged as a financially sound company. This step helps to solidify our as the leading North American producer of printing and specialty papers. ANNAPOLIS - An increase in gas taxes, a repeal of the death penalty, and a renewed discussion of liability for pit bull owners are some of the issues currently on the table for Marvland's 2013 legislative session.

In addition, the recent shootings at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Conn., have prompted Gov. Martin O'Malley and legislation in the upcoming However, with the ongoing fiscal cliff discussions in Washington threatening to dramatically affect taxes and the economy, plans for the 2013 session in Maryland may be severely altered depending on the outcome.

Maryland has a huge public sector workforce, and is home to a multitude of government agencies and military operations. Any cutbacks in government spending or closure of government agencies would dramatically hurt

Delegate Kathleen Dumais, D-Montgomery, the vice chair of the House

Judiciary Committee, said that should the fiscal cliff be avoided, one of the most important issues in 2013 would be the proposed increase in gas taxes to generate funding for transportation projects.

"We have to somehow address transportation funding," Dumais said.

Dumais said that she, along with the rest of the Montgomery County delegation, has supported raising taxes on gas, even if just others to promise gun control by one penny, in order to generate desperately needed revenue. However, she thinks a bill proposing a statewide raise would face challenges because of the disparity between rural and urban areas. The Montgomery County delegation has been, generally speaking, willing to do that and vote for that. But it's more controversial in other areas of the state," Dumais said. "But I understand when you're in a rural area and you have to drive farther just for groceries ... it is sort of a different equation for a rural community than for a community like Rockville.'

JANUARY SUN - As January begins, the sun appears in front of the stars of Sagittarius, moving a degree a day eastward relative to the stars. At midnight of the night of January 1-2, the Earth is closest to the sun, at a distance of 91.5 million miles. The seasons are caused by the tilt of the Earth's axis. At this time of the year, our part of the world is tipped away from the sun. This results in the sun having a low track across the sky and being visible several hours less than our 12 hour average of daily sunlight. On the morning of Jan. 19, the sun enters Capricornus, where it remains until the early a.m. hours of Feb. 16. Both of these star groups are nearly lost in the sun's glare in January. The star group Aquarius is to the east of Capricornus, so it sets after the sun, appearing low in the southwestern dusk. The star group Scorpius (to the west of Sagittarius) rises before the sun and is visible low in the southeastern dawn. In early January, sunrises in Garrett County are at about 7:38 a.m., while sunsets are at about 5:05 p.m. (9.45 hours of daylight). Around the end of January, Garrett County's sunrises are at about 7:25 a.m. and sunsets occur at about ers recently recognized by 5:38 p.m. (10.2 hours of daylight). So during January, the the Maryland Bankers Asstars are last seen at around 6:30 a.m. (early dawn) and then sociation as a "Next Leader reappear at about 6:25 p.m. (late dusk).

JANUARY MOON - January opens with the moon in the morning sky, shrinking to half-full on Jan. 4. You can then spot the moon in the a.m. day sky and view its grey plains with binoculars. On Jan. 10, a slender crescent moon appears near the planet Venus very low in the 7 a.m. southeastern dawn. On the 11th, the moon swings from the morning side of the sun to the evening side. On Jan, 12. a very slender moon may be seen in the 6 p.m. south western dusk. To the left and above the moon at that time is the planet Mars. On Jan. 18, the evening moon appears half-full. Along the straight or left edge of the moon, the sun there is rising, lighting up the crater rims and mountain ranges. Those with binoculars or telescopes can see the craters and lunar terrain best at this moon phase or shape. The moon appears near the bright planet Jupiter on Jan. 21. Binoculars held steadily may allow you to see a few of Jupiter's large moons as tiny points astride the planet. On Jan. 22 and 23, the moon appears above the star group Orion in the southern evening sky. On the night of Jan. 26-27, the moon is full, rising as the sun sets and hanging in the sky all night long. Winter full moons have a low sky path. For the rest of January, the moon slowly exits the evening sky, rising about 50 minutes later each night.

JANUARY PLANETS - The five nearest planets are easily seen by eye, four of them shining steadily in contrast to the twinkling stars. Of the five, Mercury is usually the most difficult to see, at a low angle to the sun and very close to the horizon. Mercury is too close to the sun to be seen in January, but will be seen easily in late February's southwestern dusk. Venus can be seen low in the southeastern dawn in the first half of January. In late January, Venus rises a scant ½ hour before the sunrise and is lost in twilight. Mars sets at about 7 p.m. and is quite dull, being on the far side of its orbit. The giant planets Jupiter and Saturn are most easily seen in January. Jupiter is the bright evening planet, shining in Taurus, near the bright orange star Aldebaran. Jupiter is the brightest point of light in the southern evening sky. When Jupiter begins to drop into the west in the early a.m. hours, the planet Saturn rises in the east. In the 6 a.m. dawn, Saturn is high enough in the southeast for good views of its rings. Saturn now lies in eastern Virgo.

JANUARY STARS - In January, the bright winter evening stars are on full display in the 9 p.m. southeastern sky. First look for Orion with his three-star belt. The belt points left and down to Sirius, the night's brightest star. Sirius marks the throat of Orion's Big Dog. Above and to the left of Sirius is Procyon, a bright star that marks the head of the Little Dog. Orion's two brightest stars, Rigel, below the belt, and Betelgeuse, above the belt, point upward to Gemini, the heavenly brothers. High over Orion is the bright golden star Capella. Farther to the west of Capella are the Pleiades, or 7 Sisters, star cluster, resembling a tiny dipper. The Big Dipper again can be seen in the north-northeastern sky, with its scoop on top and handle below. The two top stars of the scoop point left to the North Star.

On behalf of the entire Woods family, we would like to express our sincere appreciation to the hundreds of loved ones, friends, classmates, associates, and even acquaintances who helped us through the loss of our son Andrew. In thirty-four short years his life touched so many people in so many different ways. We were amazed at the stories told by those who knew him as a friend or as a colleague. The thread that intertwined each story was always one of kindness, friendliness, big heartedness, and genuine care. We would particularly like to thank Rev. Sam Wachter for guiding us through the most difficult time we have ever faced. Along with Herbert Lambert, Cindy Carr, Walt Copeland, and Buck DeWitt, the service could not have been more special. The effort of Chris and W.H. and the entire Burdock-Fredlock staff was filled with nothing but compassion. I cannot imagine anyone better to have cared for our son. Andrew's life was best described by the stirring stories recounted by Traci Royce, Tom Bosley, and Bill Ewing. Their remembrance of Andrew will always be a part of our hearts. To begin to thank the scores of others who brought food/drinks, paid visits, sent flowers, kept watch care over us, and wiped our tears would be impossible without missing someone who had really made a difference. Please know that we will thank all of those whom our memories and records allow Andrew (Andy to us - Drew to his colleagues) will live on in our hearts for all the days that God blesses us with. His brilliant eyes, caring smile, and big heart will be evident every day in his beloved daughter Gabby. She will be our connection. No two parents could possibly have loved a son more than Debbie and I have loved our two sons, Joshua and Andy. Without them our lives would not have been complete. We rejoice in his life and look forward to the day that God's promise will be fulfilled - when once again we can embrace our Andy! Tom and Debbie Woods

"It's a horrible, terrible, no-good, rotten idea." So said Carol Lear, a lawyer for the Utah Office of Education, after being asked for her opinion about the idea of arming public school teachers, which is among the proposals resulting from the recent school massacre in Connecticut.

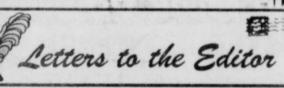

In fact, the Utah Shooting Sports Council is offering firearms training today for 200 Utah teachers. In Ohio, the Buckeye Firearms Association is launching a test program in tactical firearms training for 24 teachers initially. Arizona Attorney General Tom Horne has proposed amending state law to allow one educator in each school to carry a gun.

While the idea of arming teachers might not be quite as "terrible, no-good, and rotten" as Ms. Lear believes, there is no question that doing so poses a number of new concerns. Teachers, principals, and other school officials are already strapped to the max when it comes to teaching and caring for children - by parents and by government edict. They are expected to do more and more every year. Carrying a loaded firearm amongst their students as the latest requirement is way beyond what should be expected of teachers. Accidental shootings, teachers being over-powered by a killer-wannabe or a parent who suddenly becomes age that killing is okay (we see enraged, a loaded weapon accidentally left on a desk, it in some countries), the child innocent individuals being struck by misdirected bul- understands that killing is not lets, etc., are legitimate concerns when it comes to only a good idea, but one will arming teachers.

The scenario is worse in a school of elementary children compared to, say, a shopping mall, because the stitutional rights, which are great majority of occupants are small children. FLU VACCINE by Dr. Stephen I. Parks

Q. My wife wants me to get a flu shot, but I'm not sure it's worth it. My neighbor got the vaccine last year and immediately got sick. Later that winter she caught the flu anyway. Are these shots any good?

A: Good enough. Life's a gamble, but when you have a winning hand, you should play it. Getting the flu shot isn't a sure thing, but it really does put the odds in your favor.

Flu shots have been studied for many years and in many ways, and the results all point to the same thing: You can reduce your chances of getting the flu better than half if you get the shot. Even if you get the flu, you might recover faster. But if you are allergic to eggs, avoid the shot, because eggs are used to make the vaccine.

At any time, there are dozens of immunologically different flu virus strains around the globe. These strains travel everywhere at the speed of a passenger jet. The only way to be immune to all of them is to catch every single kind of flu. Or get vaccines against them all. Scientists at the CDC (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) don't believe it's practical to vaccinate people against all the strains, and new ones keep popping up anyway. So they do the next

Every spring they look at the types of flu that are in circulation. Then they look into their crystal ball (actually, a computer model) to see what strain of flu is most likely to produce outbreaks next winter. Then they tell manufacturers to start making vaccines against the top three or so

During the summer, stockpiles are built up, and then in the fall we roll up our sleeves at the local drugstore. What we get is the result of bets placed by CDC back in March. A lot can happen in eight months, and the CDC may have missed a strain that will get you in January.

This year it looks like CDC's bets paid off. The early outbreaks of flu are a strain that was included in this year's vaccine. If you get the vaccine, you will probably be protected from that virus. If you are old, your immune system may not be so responsive to the vaccine; but even then, your case could be milder from being partly prepared.

And, of course, there are all those other, different viruses floating around that the CDC considered less of a threat. The vaccine will do nothing to protect you against them, so your protection from the flu won't be complete. But you may already be immune to those viruses - either because sometime in your life you caught that strain, or because a past vaccine included that strain. Studies show that you cut your odds of getting any kind of flu by around half if you get the shot; better in some years than others, depending on how lucky CDC was.

Another thing - By getting vaccinated you protect not only yourself, but the people you would pass it on to if you got sick. And for heaven's sake, if you get sick, stay home! Don't dope yourself up and go to work because you're too macho to let a little flu get you down. You'll just make your

If you are not allergic to eggs, get the shot. Many insurance plans even cover the cost. It's a good bet for them, because it can save them the cost of hospital care.

"The chapter has also applied for a scholarship to attend the National Phi Theta Kappa Conference in California in April," McKenzie noted.

The chapter undertook several projects during the fall semester, including making wreaths for the Dove Center's Festival of Trees and dog treats for the Humane Society. McKenzie said upcoming projects for 2013 will include fundraising, plus participating in projects for the March of Dimes, the Humane Society, Relay for Life, and Special Olympics. On-campus events will include bringing in leadership speakers and creating service projects to help further Phi Theta Kappa's four hallmarks of Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Fellowship.

Judge Reimposes Two Years Of Local Man's Sentence

A 32-year-old Accident man, Jamie Allen Ferguson, admitted in Garrett County Circuit Court last week that he violated his probation by committing crimes. Judge Jim Sherbin reimposed two of the three years that had previously been suspended and ordered these to be served consecutively to the sentence currently being served, all in the Division of Corrections.

In March, Ferguson was sentenced to five years, with 31/2 years suspended, for a Pharmacy. After serving his jail time, he was placed on probation.

In May, the Garrett County Sheriff's Office charged Ferguson for driving without a license, and in July, the Maryland State Police Ferguson is serving two years and 11 months in the Division of Corrections for these

In an unrelated case, charges against Jeffrey Vincent Corby, 44, Oakland, for a burglary and theft at the VFW in Deer Park in February 2008 were placed on the stet docket in Circuit Court. Corby is required to remain away from that facility and to pay restitution to the organization.

Similar charges against co-defendant Roger Wayne Strawser Jr., 46, Loch Lynn, were dismissed.

In another recent Circuit Court proceeding, William Patrick Murray III, Swanton, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol per se. Related charges against him were not prosecuted.

Sherbin sentenced Murray to one year (to run concurrently to another sentence he is serving) in the Garrett County Jail. He was also PG-13 fined $500.

The charges against Murray stem from a traffic stop conducted by the Maryland State Police along Rt. 219 near the Garrett County Fairgrounds in July.

> What was on Harry Truman's mind, for instance, at the end of World War II? How did General Hooker truly feel as he rode into Chancellorsville?

Sometimes, it helps to know that you'll never know. As you'll see in the new book Custer by Larry McMurtry, the truth often dies with leaders of war.

In 1876, about 40 million people lived in the United States. America was a growing nation, and nobody was produce his vehicle registra- more dismayed about it than its natives.

Indians then were "periodically paraded through Washington or New York" in order to impress upon them the "futility of ... resistance."

But resistance there was. In the 1860s and 1870s, Indians organized uprisings, killed white immigrants "in messy fluence of alcohol, speeding, ways," and fought against takeover of their land. There was a "peace policy" that was widely jeered, and 350 treaties of this author will appreciate his almost waggish treatment of Custer and the stories that surround him and his career, and they'll like the concise, distinct McMurtry-style overview of it all.

What I liked most, though, are the illustrations. McMurtry pulled together artwork by Western artists, maps, and authentic photographs from the Civil War through the late 1880s. The latter, especially, are striking, strangely affecting, and are reason alone to own this book.

Yep, it's a keeper. I believe, in fact, that if you're into 'Custerology" or if you're a history buff, there's one word to remember when asked what you want this gift-giving season: Custer. Because it's truly impressive.

What a wonderful Christmas season this has been, with a white Christmas, time with family and friends, lots of good food, and the excitement of little ones opening presents. I was lucky enough to be able to spend time with my whole family both Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Some of those family members I see very rarely, for no apparent reason other than finding the time to do so. That really makes Christmas all the more special.

· In Singapore, one of the colorful customs is training birds for singing competitions. It's not always just a hobby, though; for some, it's a serious -- and costly -- business. A single well-trained bird might sell for as much as $60,000. • If you're an oenophile -- that's an aficionado of wine -- you probably won't be surprised to learn that as the cost of a wine goes up, so does a drinker's appreciation of that wine. It seems that it's not all about the quality of the vintage, though: In a recent study, tasters were offered two samples of the same wine, but each sample was labeled with a different price. The tasters overwhelmingly preferred the more expensive vintage.

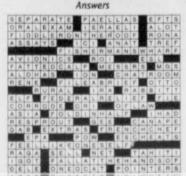

• Only one-fifth of homes in America are not air-conditioned. In the sweltering South, a mere 5 percent lack that vital amenity. • Those who study such things say that the wind power in an average hurricane is equivalent to 1.5 trillion watts.  On Jan. 5, 1945, Japanese pilots receive the first order to become kamikaze, meaning "divine wind" in Japanese. Q: I have a full set of Russel Wright dinnerware in the American modern. I love the simplicity of the pattern, and I'd like to know a little more about the company. -- Susan,

Batavia, Ill.

A: Russel Wright was one of America's most creative industrial designers and was instrumental in creating several lines of dinnerware, glassware and aluminum items. All are extremely popular with collectors. The "American Modern" pattern was manufactured at the Steubenville Pottery Company in 1939 and production continued until about 1959.

Pieces of this pattern in White, Bean brown, Cantaloupe and Glacier Blue are especially desirable. Typical prices are mug, $50; coffee pot, $150; refrigerator jar, $160; and 10-inch dinner plate, $10. If any are in the colors mentioned earlier, values would double.

If you can track down a copy of "The Collectors Encyclopedia of Russel Wright Designs" by Ann Kerr, get it, since is one of the better references.

Q: I have sent you three letters but have not seen my question answered in your column. Why? -- Unsigned but postmarked in Leland, Fla.

A: I don't answer anonymous letters. If you request my help, you should at least have the courtesy of sharing your name with me. A telephone number also is helpful, so if I have any questions I can contact you. After a question is answered in this column, the original letter is destroyed in my shredder, guaranteeing the writer's anonymity. There is no need for such secrecy.

Q: I have a vase marked "R.S. Poland" that I purchased in a consignment shop for $25. I can't find the mark in any of my reference books. -- Laura, Willmar, Minn.

A: "R.S. Poland" is a mark attributed to Reinhold Schlegelmilch's factory in Tilliwitz, Silesia. I think your vase is post World War II. Many of the vases produced by this company often sell well above $500.

Q: I have 12 postcards from the New York World's Fair of 1939. What would they be worth? — Josie, Ormond Beach, Fla.

A: There were millions of postcards printed and sold during the fair. Most sets sell in the $15 to $25 range, depending on quality and views.

The Simple Truth

Today's world is complex; moral standards are more elastic than a rubber band. Concepts of right and wrong are stretched in convenient directions. How can we survive the whirl of conflicting philosophies and revolving door values? What is the simple truth for today?

The truth for today is and has always been found in God's Word. The Bible has inspired great leaders throughout time; its unchanging principles can guide you through today and a maze of tomorrows. As you worship this week give thanks to God for His Truth, the simple truth.

Miracles Everywhere

If we take the time and effort to look closely, we will realize that miracles are all around us. Almost everything, when viewed properly, is a miracle. Life, the solar system, and matter itself are miraculous. These things are aweinspiring and defy easy explanations from almost any perspective. From a philosophical point of view it is impossible to answer the question why there is a universe in the first place, and once we begin to look at life and the material universe from a scientific perspective we see that it is infinitely complex and always amazing. One doesn't have to be religious to be inspired by the world around us, and many scientists and students of science wax poetic when they begin to grasp the miraculous intricacies of our wondrous universe. Many people think of miracles as God doing something to violate the laws of nature, of God doing tricks for us, as it were. But, God is the very author of the laws of nature, if you want to see the miracle, just look around you. It's in the starry heavens above you, in the sand beneath your feet, and in the beating heart within you, and perhaps most of all in the mass of neurons which is your brain and which allows you to contemplate it all.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

I think it is a sure thing that simply tired of it. Garrett County will have a regular white Christmas. At least the first day of official winter - Dec. 21 - already qualifies, with an inch or two on the ground before the big winter storm hit. I just hope Claire is caroling with her cousin Matthew from the metro area, and Caitlin is on her way home from Morgantown. She got a ride with Leo Schlosnagle. It doesn't look like the road conditions have gotten bad vet. There are only a few snowflakes in the air.

Today was supposed to be the day when planet Earth hurtled into outer space. This is according to the ancient after they signed the Dec-Mayan calendar, which hap-laration of Independence. Mayan calendar, which happened to end on Dec. 21,

Once again I failed miserably to do my Christmas cards. My address book is a mess, without many Zip codes and other problems. Too many people are always moving around. Since I was working on them on Dec. 20, there was not much chance the last few cards would make it in time. I will send out some New Year's cards. My final Christmas card was my hand-painted regional card to the First Family. Luckily, I was able to find the White House Zip code. But I didn't get my card done for former President Jimmy Carter. Our nation's founding is possible because at the birth of our nation, two vastly different intellectual giants like Jefferson and John Adams engaged in a lifelong debate and civilized discussion about all the confusing issues early America was facing. It is ironic, but also fitting, that both died on the same day. July 4, 1782, only six years The nation they both helped create was still in its infancy. General Permit for Discharges of Storm Water and Hydrostatic Test Water From Oil Terminals (MDG34). This permit authorizes the discharge of storm water from storage tank diked and loading rack areas and hydrostatic test water to surface or ground waters of the State from petroleum terminals having less han 5,000,000 gallons storage of oil. This permit sets numerical limits on the concentration of the petroleum product contamination following treatment of the storm water or hydrostatic test

General Permit for Discharges of Treated Ground Water from Oil Contaminated Ground Water Sources (MDG91). This permit authorizes the discharges of treated ground water previously contaminated by petroleum products as the result of leaks or spills. This permit sets numerical limits on the effluent concentration of the petroleum product contamination following treatment of the contaminated ground water.

Both federal (40 CFR 122) and State (COMAR 26.08.04) regulations require discharge permits for these activities. Specifically, State regulations require that discharges of any wastes or wastewater to surface or ground water, regardless of volume, be authorized by a discharge permit. Federal regulations address discharges to surface waters only, requiring a permit for the discharge of pollutants. The limits for these permits are based on what has been demonstrated to be technologically achievable. Self-monitoring is required to verify compliance. The permits also require testing to verify that the discharges with a specified volume and duration be tested to verify that the effluent is not toxic to aquatic life, and if toxicity is present, the permit requires its elimination. This is a requirement of the federal Clean Water Act. This permit also sets operational requirements, such as

Carrying the legacy: New Year's celebration set to follow retrospective on Dick Clark's life

By Andrew Warren

Every holiday has its traditions, and New Year's Eve is no exception. From bottles of bubbly to rowdy renditions of "Auld Lang Syne" once that clock strikes midnight, the ringing in of a new year is an event steeped in cus-

And since 1975, the youthful, familiar face of Dick Clark has been beamed over the airwaves from New York City's Times Square, where he brought America's most famous New Year's celebration into people's homes with "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve" on ABC.

Sadly, Clark passed away in April this year after suffering a heart attack, but his New Year's legacy will live on thanks to his chosen successor. The New Year's Eve legacy of "America's Oldest Teenager" will be carried on with "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve With Ryan Seacrest," broadcast live from Times Square on Monday, Dec. 31.

Clark created the show to ring in 1973 before taking over as host in 1975, bringing his iconic youthful energy to the celebration. In the decades since, he was the face of the new year to many families. When Clark suffered a stroke in 2004, Regis Philbin graciously stepped in on short notice to ring in 2005. The following year marked Seacrest's first appearance as Clark's "Rockin'" co-host and executive producer. Seacrest took over most of the hosting duties for the televised celebration, but the recovering Clark continued to participate in show started early this year with a two-hour special celebrating Clark's rich and rewarding life. Hosted by model and actress Jenny McCarthy and recording artist Fergie, this television event promises to bring Clark's accomplishments to life.

And what a life it was. Although he got his start in radio, Clark is best remembered for his accomplishments on TV. His big break happened when he took over the show "Bandstand," which was renamed "American Bandstand" when it moved to ABC in 1957.

"American Bandstand" became the voice of a generation of youth. The after-school program featured teenagers dancing to popular rock 'n' roll music, and Clark's smiling, approachable demeanor is often credited with helping to make the genre, which was often cast as the music of teenaged rebellion (and often referred to as "the devil's music"), more acceptable to parents and older generations.

"American Bandstand" was also instrumental in helping to break down racial barriers. Not long after taking over "Bandstand," Clark threw out the show's policy of only playing music by white musicians and began playing records of black artists alongside those of their white contemporaries. It was a bold move in an age of civil rights rumblings, and the youthful host took it even further when he abolished segregated seating amongst the studio audience.

Hosting one of television's most popular shows, taking rock 'n' roll mainstream, creating

But that's just the tip of the iceberg. Following the retrospective of Clark's rich and accomplished life, "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve" gets the party going with its creator's classic style. Music memories Hamlisch honored in PBS concert special

By Sheila Busteed

MUSIC MEMORIES: On Aug. 6, 2012, the world suffered the loss of one of the greatest American composers the entertainment industry has ever known. Now, on the last night of the year, talented performers whose careers have felt the powerful influence of Marvin Hamlisch are paying tribute to his extraordinary contributions and achievements Originally, Hamlisch was booked to conduct the

New Year's Eve concert by the New York Philharmonic, but his sudden death has inspired organizers to use the event to honor his memory. Directed by Lonny Price, the televised special, titled One Singular Sensation: Celebrating Marvin Hamlisch," will air on PBS under its "Live From Lincoln Center" banner on Monday, Dec. 31. Host Audra McDonald (ABC's "Private Practice") will be joined by violinist Joshua Bell, actress Megan Hilty (NBC's "Smash"), singer Josh Groban, actor Raul Esparza (Broadway's "Speed-the-Plow"), musician Michael Feinstein, actress Kelli O'Hara (Broadway's "Sweet Smell of Success"), actress Maria Friedman (Broadway's "The Woman in White") and opera singer Frederica Von Stade as conductor Paul Gemignani leads them and the Philharmonic through a special program featuring Hamlisch's music.

Among Hamlisch's many successes is undoubtedly a case full of trophies. His work won him three Oscars, four Grammys, four Emmys, three Golden Globes, a Tony and the Pulitzer Prize, making him one of the most decorated members of the entertainment He's best known for writing the music for such stage productions as "A Chorus Line," "Sweet Smell of Success" and "The Goodbye Girl" plus the films "Sophie's Choice" (1982), "The Spy Who Loved Me" (1977), "The Sting" (1973) and "The Way We Were

Students in Kansas protested lyrically by creating a music video, "We are Hungry," a parody of the song "We are Young" by Fun, showing students who are unable to complete their daily tasks because of extreme hunger. The video has received more than million views on YouTube.

While students have spoken out about their post-lunch hunger, it is not something that is exclusive to those still in school.

"Being hungry after a meal is very common for many age groups, not just these younger age groups," Rieg said. "However, common does not equal normal. It's common because the majority of us follow the mainstream health advice that we have been led to believe is true and healthy. Unfortunately, there are many health and food myths out there that form our eating habits and thus trickle into school lunches as

Rieg said healthy fats are just as essential to a healthy diet as fruits and vegetables

The Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010, spearheaded by first lady Michelle Obama, focuses on improving child nutrition by increasing the availability of fruits, vegetables, and whole grains, and setting calorie and sodium maximums. Schools have to meet the guidelines set in order to receive financial reimbursement for the meals distributed to students. Previously the requirement for fruits and vegetables was one-half to three-quarters of a cup of fruit and vegetables combined per day, and now three-quarters of a cup of vegetables is required per day, in addition to one-half cup

"I don't believe it's a matter of calorie counting at all," Rieg said in an e-mail. 'When we try to determine what's enough for a lunch, or any meal, focusing on the calorie count, we miss the most important aspect of food - quality. I truly believe that most of us, especially our children, are undernourished, not underfed.'

Rieg believes serving more nutrient-rich foods instead of "200 calories of plain broccoli or 200 calories of skinless chicken breast" can solve the hunger problem in schools.
